SUPPOSE YOU saw a hen running away, carrying her own egg under her wing with a highly indignant rooster in pursuit, crying "Give me back my egg," you would laugh at the rooster, and say:

"Why don't you lay an egg of your own? That egg belongs to the hen that laid it."

THIS IS THE General Pier Ruggero Piccio head of Italy's army. In a flying machine he pursues and overtakes his beautiful wife fleeing in a high powered speed boat, with her little daughter.

Piccio is Italy's "Ace of Aces," and brought down 42 enemy planes in the war. None the less that baby belongs to the mother that made it.

LATEST NEWS confirmed the statement, published here, that Taggart of Indiana is not working in the combination against McAdoo working for Al Smith. The effort to line Taggart up with the Al Smith group has failed, at least for the present. And Taggart, representative of a determined type of man that comes from the North of Ireland, is not often crowded into changing his mind.

AL SMITH publicly announces that he will be nominated "as soon as the convention gets down to voting for a real man." Forty other candidates say the same thing privately.

If betting were moral or desirable, you would be advised to take the "dark horse" against any two favorite sons.

THERE HAS been talk of a "Woodrow Wilson political will." Somebody was to read that political will, a sort of brother to the famous political will of Peter the Great—which Peter, by the way, never wrote.

Woodrow Wilson's will was to tell this Democratic convention exactly what it must do about everything. It turns out also that Wilson didn't write any political will.

YOU REALIZE how rapidly things move as you reflect that with all his intelligence Woodrow Wilson couldn't have forecast this campaign.

Bank failures in the Northwest and the price of wheat are more important than the League of Nations.

The Ku Klux Klan is considerably more conspicuous as an issue than the "mandate" for Liberia or Mosul.

HOW MANY little boys know that our word "muslin" comes from Mosul, or that our able Italian Mussolini got his name from that land of the Mohammedans? Read in Marco Polo's travels that "great merchants who convey spices and drugs from one country to another are termed Mossulini."

Thirteen thousand, five hundred American flags will decorate the Democratic convention, enough to convince you of its patriotism. Three thousand, five hundred large sized flags will hang on the walls. Ten thousand little flags will be released, to flutter among the spectators.

Another flag will be there, with quite a crowd sitting under it, although you won't see it. That flag will have 13,500 nice little dollar marks on it, and in the final result, it may have something to say. How some Americans would laugh at themselves, and others curse, if they could know how nominations are settled for them.

BOSTON IN DARKNESS AS STORM'S EDGE SWEEPS N. E.

Property Loss Left in Wake of Violent Weather Disturbance Placed at $4,000,000

N. Y. AND WEST SUFFERS

Buildings Overturned and Fruit and Crops Ravaged; Wires Wrecked in Wide Area

Thirty-three killed and property damage of more than $10,000,000 was the toll of the storm which, sweeping out of the Great Lakes region, became almost a tornado in western New York and put New England in darkness for several hours yesterday.

The storm thundered into western New York on the wings of a mile-a-minute gale, left a trail of wreckage in its path.

The heat wave caused twenty-one deaths in the Ohio Valley, which it gripped for several days. The heat wave was broken by a violent wind storm which was followed by the electrical storm.

BOSTON IN DARKNESS.

Boston and its suburbs woke yesterday morning to peals of thunder following sharp flashes of lightning. Darkness settled over the city at 8 o'clock necessitating the lighting of automobile lamps. Lights were turned on in offices and homes.

The temperature dropped several degrees.

Throughout western New York a terrific wind and electric storm today flattened trees. Worked havoc with crops, crippled telephone and telegraph service and started scores of fires.

In Rochester, Mrs. Frances LaBlanche died from fright. In Oswego, Mrs. Mary Bailey, 80, died in her home, as a result of fright and shock caused by the storm. At Herlames, a man was killed.

68-MILE GALE

In Buffalo the wind attained a velocity of 68 miles an hour and nearly an inch of rain fell in two hours. About 1400 telephones were put out of service. The South Park and Cazenovia Park sections were covered by shattered branches and fallen trees. Two houses under construction were demolished and damage from a score of fires started by lightning bolts was estimated at thousands of dollasr.

In Wayne county, many orchards were left scarred by long lanes of twisted and uprooted trees. Houses were reported overturned i nPalmyra.

At Akron, N. Y., $200,000 damage resulted when a lightning bolt fired the plant of the General Crushed Stone. The power plant of he Nnoble Gypsum also was destroyed. At the plant of the American Cement and Plaster company, where 100 men were working, a lightning bolt entered a shop through a pole. None was injured. Houses were destroyed in the village of Collins.

Dunkirk was buried under fallen trees and branches. The wind reached hurricane proportions and boats running for cover from Lake Erie were damaged in the harbor.

East Aurora was thrown into darkness by the worst storm in 20 years.

CIDER FUMES KILL 2, OVERCOME 4

Father and Son Victims When They Enter Empty Vat to Clean It

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 21.—Two men were suffocated by cider fumes when they entered an empty vat to clean it at Manchester Bridge, today. Five others were overcome.

The dead are Alfred Enkler and his son, Henry. Ralph Kimlin, proprietor of the mill, was taken to a hospital where he was reported in a serious condition.

Henry Enkler descended into the vat first to clean it. After a few minutes the father hearing no sound from his son went down to see what was the matter. When no sound was heard from him either, Kimlin became alarmed and started down the ladder. He was overcome.

Officials attempted to enter the vat to bring up the victims but after four men were overcome this plan was given up and a hook orrangement was used to take the bodies from the vat.

REVERE MAN ACCUSED AS WIFE-SLAYER

Police Charge He Shot and Clubbed Her in Quarrel Over Man

ACCIDENT, SAYS HUSBAND

Neighbors Say They Heard the Gravalese Couple Quarreling; Heard Cry, "Save Me!"

A victim of what police say was a vicious attack by her husband, during which he shot and clubbed her, Mrs. Theresa Gravalese, thirty-one, of Oakland street, Revere, died yesterday at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Gravalese was held for murder.

A shotgun with a broken stock, found in the Gravelese home, is believed by police to be the weapon used in the attack. It is thought Gravelese first shot his wife and then clubbed her with the shotgun.

Police officers were at the woman's bedside to the end, in hope she would recover consciousness long enough to make a statement, but she died without doing so.

Gravelese told police his wife was walking down stairs with the shotgun when she slipped and fell, causing the gun to explode.

Lawrence Belmont, a neighbor, told police he heard the Gravelases quarreling shortly before the shooting. After the shot was fired he said he heard the wife scream, "Save me, save me."

Police say the quarrel concerned another man with whom Gravalese accused his wife of being too friendly. A strand of woman's hair, found on the stock of the gun, gave police their theory that Gravalese clubbed her after the shooting.

Gravalese is a war veteran, having been gassed in France. He was for a time an inmate of an insane hospital, according to his sister. He is receiving government aid as a disabled soldier.

The husband was arraigned in Chelsea court on a murder charge and held without bail for trial, Saturday.

Mrs. Gravalese was married twice, being divorced from her first husband a few years ago. She married the man now held for her murder in April, 1923. They had no children.

MRS. COOLIDGE TO GIVE DOLL NAME

Ashburnham, June 21.—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of President Coolidge, will name a doll offered as one of the prizes at an old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration here. THRONG SEES BOLD HOLDUP IN SOUTH END

Bookkeeper on Way From the Bank Is Seized by Man Who Leaped From a Doorway

BATTLES HIGHWAYMAN

Thief Escapes Police in Mile Chase; One Suspect Held Is Finally Given Release

The regular daylight holdup of a Saturday payroll was staged in the South End yesterday when Miss Esther Wise, 23, bookkeeper for Michael Sullivan of 101 Bristol street, was held up and robbed at Dover and Fay streets.

Although her screams attracted two policemen, who chased the robber for more than a mile, he escaped. Later an officer picked up a man who was breathing heavily, but he was released when Miss Wise failed to identify him at the station house.

Miss Wise had just come from the bank and was on her way back to pay off her employer's help. She was passing along Fay street, near Dover, when a man jumped out of a doorway and seized her purse, containing $273.

While scores were within sight, the bandit wrestled with the fighting bookkeeper for a minute or more, finally wrenching the bag from the hands of the girl.

POLICE GIVE CHASE.

Miss Wise screamed to attract attention. Patrolmen Elliot and Miner came running up. Pointing at the fleeing man, Miss Wise collapsed on the sidewalk.

Miner and Elliot pulled their guns and started in pursuit. The chase led over several South End streets until the fugitive darted in among the back areas of the buildings and became lost in a maze of back yards and board fences.

Later Miss Wise recovered and went to Dedham street station, where she waited to identify any possible suspect the officers could round up.

"It was the greatest surprise of my life," she said. "To think I could be walking along a busy street right in the middle of the day and be robbed of my employer's money.

"I know it must have been someone who hangs around Dover street or Harrison avenue and who knew or saw that I was accustomed to go to the bank every Saturday for the payroll.

PARALYZED WITH FRIGHT.

"I am sure he was alone, for though it happened so suddenly I am sure I would have seen any other man. He jumped at me so quickly I was paralyzed with fright. But I came to quickly and fought the best I knew how to save Mr. Sullivan's money.

"What makes me believe the robber belongs in the South End is that he escaped so easily he must have been known by people who saw him and who refused to interfere.

"You bet I'll never go after that payroll again unless someone goes with me. I'm sorry for Mr. Sullivan, he is such a kind employer.

"There is one fellow who used to work for us who was discharged, and I wouldn't put it past him to do such a trick."

Police captains and officials, frantic at the repeated and daring weekly robberies, are determined to round up all known criminals in Boston.

Hearst Says He Will Support Any Genuine Progressive Democrat

June 20, 1924.

To the Editor of the Boston Sunday Advertiser:

IN order to answer some reactionary rumors and to make the position of the Hearst papers perfectly clear regarding the various candidates before the Democratic convention let me say:

First, that the Hearst papers have no special enemies and no particular favorites in the coming contest;

Second, that the Hearst papers have made no deals with any individuals or with any machines and will make none;

Third, that the Hearst papers will print the news with the utmost impartiality and will support any genuine progressive Democrat;

Fourth; that the Hearst papers have always been opposed to the booze and boodle element of the party and will conscientiously oppose any candidate representing booze and boodle.

Wall Street newspapers and Tammany organs, please copy.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Democracy's Opportunity

PROGRESSIVE Democracy will carry the party to success, and that is no reason why the party's chances of success should be jeopardized by allowing selfish interests to inject unwise and hampering issues.

Wall Street may have brought the Democratic Convention to New York, in the hope of impressing and influencing it. The boozing and bootlegging and ex-bartendering elements of Tammany Hall may have hoped to control it in support of booze and boodle candidates.

But it is hardly likely, in view of the great chances of success offered the Democracy by the reactionary nominees and platform of the Republican party, that selfish and sordid special interests, or the newspapers which they control, can divert the intelligent patriotic citizens and the shrewd politicians of this convention from their duty and their opportunity.

What this opportunity is—the only hope of a Democratic victory next November—was shown by Mr. Hearst in his message to his papers on June 11, while the Republican National Convention was in session:

"There is a wonderful opportunity for the Democratic party. It has only to be Democratic. It has only to be American. It has only to stand for the rights and liberties and the independence of the American people.

"It has only to maintain the principles and policies of Washington and Jefferson and Jackson and Lincoln and Cleveland, and all the great men who founded the nation and built it to its great place in the world.

"The Republican party defies the people, repudiates its own parliament and stands for the divine right of wealth to rule.

"If the Democratic party is not controlled by the same powerful influences which control the Republican party, it will win a great victory for itself and for the American people in November."

PORTUGUESE FLIERS CRASH NEAR GOAL

London, June 21.—The two Portuguese army aviators who set out in April to fly from Portugal to Macao, a Portuguese dependency on the coast of China, crashed forty miles from their goal, landing in a cemetery in Hongkong, according to a dispatch received here.

The aviators abandoned their flight and will proceed to Macao on Monday on board a warship.

AL SMITH'S COLLIE FOUND AT CONEY

New York, June 21.—Governor "Al" Smith's collie "Teddie," which had been missing two days, was found by a policeman at Coney Island today in the custody of a small boy. The patrolman took the dog to the home of Governor Smith's sister, Mrs. John Glynn.

"Teddy" was given to the Governor by his mother.

McADOO AND SMITH FIGHT THREATENS TO DEFEAT BOTH

Rival Camps Claim Enough Votes to Dictate Winner; McAdoo Banks on Stampede

CARTER-GLASS BOOMED

Smith and "Favorite Sons" Likely to Force at Least 10 Ballots at N. Y. Convention

By WINDER R. HARRIS,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, June 21.—The fight between the anti-McAdoo combination, centering about Al Smith, and the William G. McAdoo forces over the Democratic Presidential nomination continued today with growing intensity.

Feeling is so bitter between the rival factions, each of which claims to control more than the one-third vote necessary to block a nomination under the two-thirds rule, that the conviction generally prevails outside the two camps that neither McAdoo nor Smith can win.

As this impression grows, there also is developing a belief that perhaps the deadlock will not be as long drawn out as at first expected. This is borne out somewhat by circumstances.

HOPES FOR STAMPEDE

McAdoo's strategy is to go into the convention with approximately 450 votes, if possible, on the first ballot, and then rush up to his maximum at a pace that it is hoped will stampede a number of the other delegates to him to put him over the two-thirds barrier.

McAdoo will reach the peak probably about the tenth ballot, it is now forecast. David Ladd Rockwell, his manager, asserts he is certain to top 640 votes and then go over.

Leaders of the anti-McAdoo coalition, after completing a canvass of delegates today, conceded to McAdoo 610 votes, including all instructed, pledged and doubtful votes, but asserted this was his maximum.

These convention generals declare they will be sitting tight while McAdoo is taking the lead, with at least 451 votes, 321 openly for Smith and 130 for favorite sons who must cooperate to beat McAdoo if their own candidates are to have any chance.

MOVES BEAUTY PARLOR

Mrs. M. C. McNamara wanted to move a beauty parlor outfit.

She didn't have a lot of time to look around for someone to buy them, either. But within three days a number of people who were interested in this outfit called at her home, 66 Victoria street, Somerville, and she exchanged her goods for cash.

Of course, there's a catch to this story. The whole truth hasn't been told. There was some secret move.

What Mrs. McNamara really did was to put an ad in the Merchandise columns of the Advertiser.

DEMOCRATIC POLITICIANS DESERT BAY STATE FOR NEW YORK

tains predict, he will be unable to hold his votes for more than a ballot or two, and then will come the break away from him.

When this develops, Smith will have his big opportunity. If he is not to follow McAdoo into the discard, he will have to show considerable progress on each succeeding ballot. Once he falters, it is agreed, his support will begin to slough off.

McAdoo undoubtedly will throw as many as possible of his delegates to somebody other than Smith, and the favorite sons delegations then will face the necessity of beating Smith if their candidates are to have any chance. There will be every reason for them to stick tighter than ever, certainly not go over at that stage to the one candidate who appears to be their greatest danger. The McAdoo managers declare their candidate has a bloc of 390 votes that will stand by them to the end, giving them a veto power which would eliminate Smith.

PLEDGE STATE TO SMITH.

Smith was unanimously indorsed for the nominatiton by the New York delegation today. The following resolution was adopted:

"That the New York State delegation pledges its loyal, continuous and unanimous support to Governor Alfred E. Smith to secure nomination as Democratic candidate for President of the United States."

Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Smith campaign manager, was named as floor leader. He is expected to make the nominating speech.

The Smith-McAdoo elimination contest has given zest to dark horse talk. The most significant move in this direction was the launching of a definite and vigorous boom for Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, a McAdoo adherent, who had McAdoo's support at San Francisco four years ago. A formal statement issued from newly-opened headquarters of "Glass supporters" indicated a belief McAdoo could not win. It said:

"In the event of the expected deadlock between McAdoo and Smith, Carter Glass, author of the Federal Reserve Act and Secretary of the Treasury in the Wilson Cabinet, will be placed before the convention as the best compromise candidate."

"GLASS FOR PRESIDENT."

The statement insisted the movement for Glass was "a serious, organized, tangible one." A permanent Glass-for-President committee will be organized when the Virginia delegation, instructed for him, arrives Sunday.

Great stress is being laid on the claim that Glass is a "constructive progressive" and was an intimate friend and trusted adviser of Woodrow Wilson. Effort is made, too, to remove any idea in the public mind the senator is "an austere, detached, unapproachable statesman." His "little red-headed grandson calls him 'pardner,'" the statement points out. He also is declared to be a farmer, as well as an editor and legislator.

The attempt to make a dent in the expected deadlock by putting forward John W. Davis, former ambassador to Great Britain, apparently did not meet with sufficient success, although those behind the move stirred up considerable talk about him. The great difficulty was that there was no indication of a break from either the McAdoo or Smith camp for the West Virginian.

LINK DAVIS AND SMITH

In McAdoo quarters it was charged that the Davis move was engineered by the Smith managers to draw votes from McAdoo. It was reported the Davis people were trying to induce the Smith managers to accept him as second choice to beat McAdoo. The McAdoo leaders asserted the nomination of Davis would amount to absolute ignoring of the Progressive West, which must be carried if the Democratic party is to win. They asserted Davis represented Wall Street and was entirely unacceptable to the West.

The Smith and Davis people professed little fear of losing the West. La Follette's health, they said, was such that he could not make the vigodous campaing necessary for him to stir up a third ticket revolt.

The boomlet for Senator Ralston of Indiana gained strength as Tom Taggart, Indiana leader, insisted he was not party to any combination against McAdoo or any other candidate, but was working solely for Ralston's nomination.

RALSTON FIT TO RUN.

Taggart took sharp exception to reports Ralston's health seriously was impaired. He declared the senator was in perfect trim and entirely capable of making a strenuous campaign. He predicted Ralston's victory in the end.

There was a well-founded report that the McAdoo strategists were seeking to make a break in the anti-McAdoo bloc by framing a deal with the Indiana delegation whereby the 30 votes for Ralston would be switched to McAdoo on an understanding that McAdoo then would put over Ralston for the vice-presidential nomination.

Should this transaction go through, it would come near insuring McAdoo's nomination, but Taggart denied Ralston had any interest in any but the first place on the ticket.

Former Gov. Cox of Ohio, standard bearer in 1920, still is being pressed as a dark horse compromise, and Gov. Silzer of New Jersey and Ritchie of Maryland continue in the possibility class. The Nebraska contingent claims Gov. Bryan of Nebraska will forge to the front when the break comes. His brother, William Jennings Bryan, now pledged to McAdoo as a member of the Florida delegation, could go over to him then.

KLAN-LEAGUE ISSUES DIVIDE PARTY LEADERS

McAdoo Forces Said to Oppose Condemnation of K. K. K.; Smith Men Favor It

STUBBORN PLATFORM TILT

Friends of Woodrow Wilson United in Support of League of Nations

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, June 21.—Shoals of dissension threatened the Democratic ship of state today when a group of national leaders, preparing an unofficial platform, reported a decided party break over the League of Nations and Ku Klux Klan issues.

The leaders are divided into three groups. One faction demands that the party go on record on both issues. A second proposes to ignore the League issue, while declaring war on the Klan. The third urges that both issues be passed over lightly.

The anti-Klan plank was championed by Brennan, Illinois leader, but it won endorsement from the followings of Al Smith of New York and Underwood of Alabama. Brennan indicated that if the plank were not adopted in committee he would carry his fight to the floor of the convention.

The McAdoo forces opposed Klan condemnation. They urged that the party stand for constitutional guarantees, with a strong law enforcement plank but without mention of the Klan. This viewpoint was shared by the Texas and Georgia delegations, both of which include Klan members.

LEAGUE ISSUE REVIVED.

While the Klan scrap overshadowed all other work of the unofficial platform makers, the proposed League plank provoked a storm of dissension. Personal friends of Woodrow Wilson, including Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, Norman H. Davis, former assistant Secretary of State, and Bernard Baruch of New York, fought for a declaration of the League.

The Brennan, Smith and part of the McAdoo followings opposed this move, contending the party should not endanger its success by reviving a losing issue. They urged adoption of a plank pledging the party "to promote such international conditions as will open the world's markets to American commerce." While the pro-Leaguers were in a majority in the unofficial conference, there was a possibility the League issue would be carried to the convention for decision. Three of the planks have been completed, subject to confirmation by the official platform committee.

These relate to the Washington scandals, to the tariff and fiscal policies. The scandal plank contained bitter condemnation of alleged Republican corruption, a promise to "clean house," and a pledge to mete out criminal punishment to wrongdoers.

Further reduction of taxes featured the fiscal plank. In it the party pats itself on the back for its work in enacting the recent slash in taxes, promises further reductions and declares in favor of general government economy. The tariff plank would promise complete revision of the Fordney-McCumber tariff law.

FARM AND RAILWAY ISSUES.

The agriculture and railroad planks, both of which will be pushed into major positions in the platform, were under discussion in today's conferences. Preliminary drafts, which arrayed the party against the Esch-Cummins act, in favor of reduced freight rates and with a full sum of promise support to the farmers, were being subjected to changes. The final drafts of these two planks, it is said, will not be completed until the committee on resolutions meets.

Other unofficial planks included denunciation of the Republican administration of the veterans' bureau, with promise to correct conditions and "clean house" generally; declaration in favor of child labor and minimum wage laws and the creation of a new labor tribunal for adjustment of industrial disputes, but with an open championing of the "living wage" and "proper living conditions."

A majority of the conferees are agreed upon a strong prohibition enforcement plank, specifically naming the dry law and calling for its observance.

PORTO RICANS FIGHT NEW ELECTION LAWS

San Juan, Porto Rico, June 21.—A protest has been lodged with Gov. Towner against approval of amendments to the election laws passed by special session of the legislature.

These amendments would increase the number of voters required to nominate by petition from 4,000 to probably 25,000, or 10 p. c. of the total votes cast in the last general election.

Astrologer Finds Cards of Fate Neatly Stacked Against Both McAdoo and Smith

By DR. ARTHUR W. BROOKS

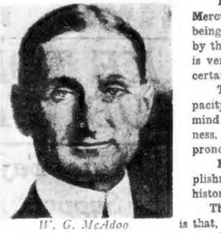
(Copyright by Universal Service, 1924.)

New York, June 21.

WHEN the chairman of the Democratic National Convention calls the assembly together, if precisely on time, it will be 11 o'clock by New York (D. S. T.) time. A horoscope calculated for the correct time, 10:04 a. m., June 24, presents a very interesting figure when considered astrologically.

It is not a very propitious time for the opening of the convention; but as the aspects prevail most of the day, the outcome will not be materially altered by a delay of a few minutes. On this day the sun and moon are in an adverse aspect. The moon is in an adverse aspect to Neptune and to Venus. Mercury is just leaving the opposition of Jupiter, and the moon is approaching the opposition of Saturn. The planet Mars is not well placed in the chart.



W. G. McAdoo

A. E. Smith

The sign of Virgo is rising in this chart. Its ruler is Mercury, and, while the planet is elevated and exalted by being in its own sign, yet some of the good pre-signified by this opposition of Jupiter is offset and the convention is very likely to find itself in a hopeless deadlock over certain candidates for nomination.

The National Democratic Convention will show a capacity for accomplishing progressive things. The general mind of the body will show much ingenuity and inventiveness, and when it comes to a close all will be compelled to pronounce it a very clever gathering.

Powerful minds will dominate. For brilliant accomplishments this convention will probably go down in the history of the party as the greatest ever held.

The great danger, as I see it from a study of the chart, is that, while the convention will commit itself to some very splendid progressive matters, the hopeless deadlock between candidates will resolve itself into some formidable attacks upon public officials, and much secret and underhand work will be resorted to.

This well-marked strife, having its origin in base intrigues, cannot do the party any good. On the whole, we might call the pending convention a very uncertain affair. It appears that it will be the source of many disappointments and not altogether a fortunate meeting.

As to the probability of success for the party at this time, that is, placing a Democratic President in the White House, it will depend on what time the actual nomination is made.

Considering the horoscopes of Governor Smith and Mr. McAdoo in the light of the chart calculated for the opening of the convention, it appears from a study of the charts that this assembly by its acts will place both these men in a very doubtful position. In fact, the planetary aspects prevailing on the opening day are adverse to both Governor Smith and Mr. McAdoo.

On the other hand, if the McAdoo forces can control the convention and bring about his nomination on the 25th, it appears that he has the advantage. If the Smith forces can block this and bring their man successfully as the candidate for nomination on the 28th, the balance of power is in his favor. If there is a hopeless deadlock and this extends beyond the 29th, both men will be eliminated and another will be named.

It is possible only after the candidates have been nominated to study their respective charts and predict who will be the next President.

HOW THE CONVENTION LOOKS TO DANIELS

By JOSEPHUS DANIELS,
Secretary of the Navy in Wilson's Cabinet.
Copyright, 1924, by Universal Service.

New York, June 21.—I am asked three days before the Democratic national convention opens to write a forecast of the proceedings of that body of more than 1,400 delegates. Now that would be an easy job if it was the Cleveland Republican convention.

All that would be necessary would be to find out what Butler and Mellon had decided upon and put an X-ray on their massive brain and eagle eye.

Then a month in advance you could foretell to a dot how the platform would straggle and all the important "pointing with pride" and "viewing with alarm."

NO PROGRESSIVE WANTED.

But you may say "you forgot the surprise of the Vice-Presidency." There you are wrong. I did not forget the tail end jazz of the ticket. The only things Butler and Mellon and the Old Guard plus Slemp were agreed upon was that the Vice President should not live west of the Mississippi River; that he should not have had any connection with the "Farm Bloc"; that he should not vote against any clause of Mellon's Sancrasanct Tax Bill; that he should not be even a relative by marriage of anybody who ever embraced a single tenet of Progressiveness.

Most of all, he must not have been a Senator who voted against seating Newberry. The last, as well as some other reasons, queered Kenyon. But as to the personality of the man, whether Dawes or Burton or some other man who ever opposed privilege they didn't care a "Tinker's D——."

NEW YORK DIFFERENT.

In New York it is different. Here only Progressives need apply. This city is full of eligibles. A Democrat is a natural born individualist and is constitutionally opposed to taking orders or staying hitched. It may be that this individualism is the cause of so many dark horse candidates.

As a matter of fact, every Democrat believes he is capable of running the whole convention and of running the country. He may accept the doctrine that one star differs from another star in glory. But your average Democrat believes he is as good and as fit to be President as any other Democrat and "a darned sight better."

There will be only 1,098 votes in the convention, but there will be over 1,400 delegates. Some will have only a fraction of a vote. But every one will demand that his fractional part be counted and he or she will assert the God-given right to tell what the convention ought to do as if he had a whole vote or wielded the gavel. Democrats will permit no suppression of the right to express themselves.

WHY THEY CAME SO SOON.

The reason so many delegates came Saturday night was in order to attend church Sunday morning. They had heard that special seats had been assigned for "The Saints" in all the places for religious worship. They wished to start off right. That's why so many are already here. Maybe they've come in advance to pray off their sins, if Democrats they commit sins and go into the convention purified and cleaned.

SMITH EXUDES CONFIDENCE.

Let us now prognosticate. It is the easiest thing in the world. Come with me to the headquarters of Al Smith. You find that hospitality and cordiality and confidence reign supreme. Part of that is Al Smith himself.

You find genial Franklin L. Roosevelt, chairman of the Smith committee, looking as if it was all over but the shouting. You are made so welcome by candidate and chairman, even though they know you are an instructed delegate for another candidate, that a visitor from a far State understands as never before why Al Smith is a marathon as a vote getter.

"Will Al Smith be nominated on the first ballot?" you ask.

"No, and nobody else will," is the quick answer. "No candidate will be within ten miles of the goal either on the first ballot or the first two or three days. Then, seeing the candidates instructed for, cannot win, the convention will resolve itself into a delegate's convention where every delegate will be asking himself but one question: which of the men can most surely win?"

"Then the evidence is overwhelming that it is Smith, not judged by claims but by the record in every election when he has been a candidate, even the one time he was defeated in the 1920 campaign when he ran far ahead of his ticket."

And that's the Al Smith talk they hand out.

McADOO ALSO CERTAIN.

Then you steer your course over to the Vanderbilt, where the McAdoo clans keep open house.

The candidate, himself, already sees himself in the White House and Mrs. McAdoo is so confident her eyes seem to say: "Drop in at 5 o'clock March 5th, 1925 and let us have a cup of tea together, you and me and President Mac," for she calls him "Mac" and is full partner and comrade.

She doesn't say it in words, but confidence and pride.

THE DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL convention this week will be the most exciting in many years. The great figure in that convention, not as a candidate but as a fighter and candidate maker, will be Delegate-at-Large from Florida William Jennings Bryan, three times nominee of the Democratic party for President, the man whose flop to Wilson on the sixth day of the Baltimore convention made Woodrow Wilson President. Mr. Bryan will write exclusively for the Hearst papers every day of the convention two complete reports daily, one at noon and one midnight, giving all the inside news.

HERRIOT TO MEET BRITISH PREMIER

Paris, June 21.—Premier Edouard Herriot left for London this morning to confer over the week end with Premier Ramsay MacDonald, of England, regarding reparations and Ruhr occupation.

Premier Herriot hopes to put the Anglo-French Entente back upon its old footing.

Dawes Plan Big Topic of Premiers' Conference

By LUTHER A. HUSTON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, June 21.—The conference of Premier MacDonald and Herriot was hailed today as inaugurating a new era in European diplomacy. Both are Socialists and both have been consistent enemies of "secret diplomacy and secret agreements."

It is generally felt that the conference will sound the death knell of the old Poincare policy towards Germany and will re-establish Anglo-French accord on a new and firmer basis.

The conference is expected to deal almost wholly with ways and means for putting the Dawes reparations plan into execution as soon as possible.

It was intimated Herriot might raise the question of French security and inter-allied debts, but MacDonald was expected to endeavor to limit discussions solely to the issues raised in the Dawes report.

It also was anticipated the Premiers would discuss the summoning of an interallied conference.

AMARAL SEEKS TO QUASH INDICTMENTS

Providence, June 21.—Anthony J. Amaral, recently indicted by the grand jury for the murder of little Clementine Cosmo, East Providence child, today filed a plea to quash the indictment on the ground that police were present while the indictment was discussed before the grand jury.

33 KILLED IN TERRIFIC STORM

A building under construction was demolished by the wind and the ruins fired by lightning.

The Niagara peninsula escaped a severe storm but reported heavy rains, with little damage from wind or lightning.

Hornell was cut of from all communication for several hours. Wires were blown down, two farmhouses and a sawmill were burned after being struck by lightning and heavy damage was done to growing crops. In the vicinity of Dansville all wires were swept away and hundreds of trees were blown down. In the city windows were broken, electrical lines wrecked and trees uprooted.

Between Syracuse and Buffalo, about half of the telephone circuits were put out of business by the lightning.

At Valatie, a bolt struck the roof of the home of Mrs. Sarah Becker, entered a bedroom and tore out a post of the bed from which Mrs. Becker and another woman had just arisen. At Stuyvesant Falls, lightning struck a large barn, which was burned with three smaller barns, livestock and farm machinery.

On three farms in the vicinity of Cortland at least twenty-five head of cattle were killed by lightning.

A bolt of lightning struck one of the nurses' dormitories at St. Francis' Hospital, Hartford, Ct. The chimney of the house was knocked off and the roof and top floor badly burned. Twelve nurses were forced out into the storm with all their belongings.

CANADA POSTOFFICE STRIKERS RETURN

Toronto, June 21.—Postal workers in a number of towns and cities took advantage of the government's offer to reinstate all men who returned to work today.

The strike order was not obeyed in any districts of Western Canada, while in the Maritime provinces, where walkouts occurred at a few points, the workers returned to their jobs.

DAVID I. WALSH SEEMS CHOICE FOR CHAIRMAN

Massachusetts Delegation Is Not Solid for "Al" Smith, Despite Persistent Attempts to Stampede McAdoo Supporters.

Every Democratic politician in this State, prominent or otherwise, is in New York today waiting for the opening of the national convention on Tuesday in Madison Square Garden.

Yesterday stragglers among the 144 Bay State delegates and alternates left this city for New York, in order to be present at the meeting of the delegation tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock.

U. S. Sen. David I. Walsh, Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge, national committeeman, and a majority of the delegates are already in the convention city.

The Massachusetts delegation is quartered at the Belmont Hotel and it will be there that the delegation will meet tomorrow afternoon for the purpose of organizing and electing officers.

WALSH FOR CHAIRMAN

Without question Sen. Walsh will be chosen chairman of the delegation, although there was some talk before the delegates left that an attempt might be made to have Brig. Gen. Charles H. Cole given his important position.

Behind this move to make Cole chairman is the figure of Martin M. Lomasney, Ward 5 leader and president of the Hendricks Club. Lomasney has every reason for wanting Cole chairman of that delegation.

Lomasney is given credit for putting Cole over in Boston in the recent delegate fight. It is also common gossip that Lomasney might try to have Cole enter the governorship race. During the week he was mentioned as a possible candidate for the nomination for vice-president.

NOT FOR AL SMITH.

Despite all the talk that has been going the rounds that the Bay State delegation is solidly for Gov. "Al" Smith of New York as the party's candidate for presidential honors, this is not so. There is no denying the fact that a determined effort to swing the delegates into line was made before their departure, but it was unsuccessful.

A majority of the delegates may be for Smith. There are also a large number, and enough to cause trouble, who are intent upon voting for William G. McAdoo.

Pressure was brought to bear upon these McAdoo delegates to get them aboard the Smith bandwagon, but this they persistently refused to do. Many of the delegates are going to the convention unpledged.

John F. Doherty of Boston, delegate for the nomination for lieutenant-governor, is the only at-large delegate who refused to pledge himself to vote for Smith.

His attitude is simply that he will vote for the man who has the best possible chance of winning the nomination and at this time he does not believe Smith has that chance. If, at the convention he finds that Smith is much stronger than he is at present, he probably will shift over. Until then he is virtually neutral.

BERRY IS MENTIONED

During last week there was a growing tendency among the delegates, prior to their departure, to discuss whom they would vote for as candidatate for vice-president and in this duscussion the name of Maj. George L. Berry of Tennessee, world war veteran and labor man, persistently arose.

Berry is in New York at present, having established headquarters at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. He is a former national vice-commander of the American Legion, has been president of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America since 1907 and for 12 years has been a successful farmer and stock raiser in Tennessee.

According to Daniel J. McDonald, business representative of the Allied Printing Trades Council here, who is managing Berry's New England campaign, the man from Tennessee has lined up a large percentage of the delegates in the New England states and particularly in this state, who will vote for him at the convention.

GALLIVAN FILES.

Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook has been very busy receiving nomination papers from candidates seeking re-election. Among the early filers was Congressman James A. Gallivan of South Boston. He is the first candidate in the field for the Congressional fight this Fall.

After filing his papers Gallivan left for New York, where he will assist the forces of Smith.

While the Democrats have been extremely active, the Republicans for the most part have been perfectly willing to sit back and watch the other fellow work. They have been cleaning up the odds and ends to their campaign arrangements, realizing that when the Democrats return from New York the battle is on.

Committee Selects Temporary Officers

New York, June 21.—The Democratic national committee, in final session today before the opening of the convention, perfected its convention organization by election of temporary officers.

The selection of Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, as temporary chairman and keynote speaker, was formally approved.

Charles S. Greathouse of Indiana was named temporary secretary, and Burt New of Indiana, executive secretary.

A spirit of harmony pervaded, climaxed by announcement from Chairman Cordell Hull that no contests had been filed.

The committee named J. J. Hughes of Iowa as sergeant-at-arms and Joseph S. Sinnott of Virginia as head doorkeeper. It also urged the national committeemen and women to select 48 assistant secretaries, one from each State.

GHOST SHIP OF RUM ROW SEIZED

Mystery surrounds the first rum-running vessel seized outside the 12-mile limit and brought into Boston yesterday by the Coast Guard Cutter Acushnet.

The vessel is the Panama steamship Toboga, know as the "ghost ship" of the North Atlantic rum fleet. Government officials have been looking for her for weeks.

The ship was seized southeast of Block Island and her captain placed under arrest. She is anchored off Governor's Island in the harbor.

The craft has been reported to government officials from day to day as being in various places. She never sold liquor over the side, but is said to be the "mother ship" for rum-running middleman schooners.

WRESTLER'S FAMILY FIGHTS DEPORTATION

New York, June 21.—Awladylaw Maskymiak, Polish wrestler, his wife and their daughter, 12, were taken from the S. S. Homeric today before sailing time on a writ ordering them to Ellis Island to await a hearing.

They arrived May 14, and because they were in excess of the quota, were ordered deported. They appealed on the ground they were entertainers.

WOMAN CHAIRMAN OF N. Y. DELEGATION

New York, June 21.—Mrs. Daniel O'Day of Rye was chosen chairman of the New York State delegation to the Democratic National Convention today.

Norman E. Mack of Buffalo and Miss Elizabeth Marbury of New York were re-elected members of the national committee.

BAY STATE VETS IN LIVELY SESSION

Haverhill, June 21.—A two-hour battle over a resolution to pay Dr. J. A. Lucas, department surgeon, a yearly salary, featured the fourth annual encampment of the Foreign Wars Veterans of Massachusetts today.

The resolution was lost, 100 to 21, but all expenses of the physician will be paid.

The veterans voted to support the candidacy of Brig. Gen. John H. Dunn, state commander, for national commander at the Atlantic City convention Sept. 8. John A. Boyle, Rhode Island department commander, for national commander, for national commander at the Atlantic City convention Sept. 8. John A. Boyle, Rhode Island department commander, promised the support of his organization for Dunn.

A resolution was adopted urging the U. S. pension laws be amended to enable World War veterans or their dependents to receive pensions without proving disability due to war service.

Seven hundred veterans, led by uniformed Boston police, paraded in the afternoon. Later there was an outing at the "Pines."

Tomorrow officers will be elected. It is expected Eugene P. Carver of Boston will be chosen department commander, although the Worcester, Springfield and Fall River delegations have formed an alliance to oppose him.

HEALTH TALK AT MORGAN MEMORIAL

Miss Dorothy George will speak on the value and importance of health before the training school, under the auspices of the New England Daily Vacation Bible Association, which holds its sessions Wednesday and Thursday mornings and afternoons in the Morgan Memorial.

LLOYD GEORGE TRACES MILLERAND'S FALL BACK TO WILSON

ENVOY OF U. S. PRESIDENT INFECTED POINCARE FIRST

French Nation as a Whole, However, Failed to Sympathize With Lust for Autocratic Authority.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE

Copyright, 1924, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. Copyright in Great Britain by London Chronicle. Exclusive World Rights Held by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. Reproduction in Whole or in Part Prohibited. All Rights Reserved.

London, June 21.—In these days of headlong speed, whether for travel or events, it is a far cry from President Wilson's visit to Paris to the startling fall of M. Millerand from the presidency of the French Republic, and yet the two events have almost as direct a connection as cause and effect.

Before his arrival, presidents of the French Republic played the role of constitutional monarchs — some with much and some with less grace. M. Poincaare was not cut out by Nature for this post. He is a man of fidgety energy and was unhappy in his presidential cage. He does not possess the reposeful dignity that enabled some of his predecessors to pace its limited confines with a grand air. His restless gyrations, his endless leaps from bar to bar, his habits of slinging paper pellets at his ministers to keep them duly worried, provoked ridicule where he expected admiration.

Wilson Sets Example

Then came on the scene a President who exercised real authority and seemed to be armed with autocratic powers. At least, during his appearance in Paris there was no one to say him nay as spokesman of the country he represented.

M. Poincare, from his gilded prison, saw the rival President re-patterning the map of the world, changing the geography of Europe, Asia, Africa, and the isles of the southern seas, settling the destinies of Europe, determining the number, names and bounds of the countries through which the Danube should thenceforth run its course, deciding whether the Rhine should in future flow through France or through Germany, and arranging the corridors for the Vistula to empty its waters into the sea, and ending up by drafting an elaborate constitution for the whole world to keep nations for all time from so furiously raging together. He then incorporated this new creation in a treaty which was to be signed, amongst others, by M. Poincare's chief minister.

Others Contract Fever

This spectacle was too much for the equanimity of M. Poincare. Whilst a rival President was making history and re-making continents, the French President had to confine himself to writing letters to M. Clemenceau for perusal by the latter's biographer. The League of Nations did not give much concern to M. Poincare and he was not very disturbed about what happened to the cannibals of the Solomon Islands or even to the pigmies of the Cameroons. He was not particularly agitated about the Danube or the Vistula, but the Rhine was his river. President Wilson was interfering with his riparian rights. From his home in Lorraine in the days of his youth he had seen Bismarck carrying the Rhine away bodily to the fatherland and he, Raymond Poincare, grown up, meant to bring it back, and here his Rhine was being ordered about by this meddlesome American, who was, after all, only a President like himself, with a four-year term at that whereas he had seven. The bars of the Elysean cage rattled with his furious efforts to break out and enter an effective protest against such infamy. He jabbed at the locks with his faithful pen, but all in vain, for the Tiger was outside keeping watch. Seeing that he could not break loose, he constantly invited that formidable animal to interviews and consultations inside the enclosure. The Tiger went, with ill-concealed weariness, but constant wariness, and, when he left, carefully locked the iron doors behind him, and until M. Poincare finally quitted the Elysee he was a prisoner of the constitution.

But President Wilson's example of apparently unfettered authority had made its impression on aspirants to the presidential succession in France. M. Clemenceau was for some weeks the favorite for the vacant throne. I was in Paris at the time and, until within a few days of the election, no one cherished any doubt that M. Clemenceau would be the next President. I saw a good deal of him then. He was not an eager candidate for the position—he was not a candidate at all. The honor was being thrust upon him by hands which conspired, later on, to snatch it away from him. It is one of the most unpleasant episodes in French history. But there is no doubt that had he been chosen, France would have had to put up with a president who would not have been content to play the part of a "roi faineant." He meant to be the real head of the republic so long as he filled that office. How would it have worked?

M. Clemenceau would, for a year or two, have been the real master of France, but as the peril receded and gratitude for his services grew fainter, the French Parliament would have gradually recovered its independence. M. Clemenceau has a deep fund of common sense and he is too wise a man to precipitate a crisis through vain stubbornness. In the end, constitutionalism would have won, but it would have been constitutionalism tempered by the influence of a strong personality.

Fate Revives Problem

French politicians — especially the incipient and prospective ministers — were not anxious to try the experiment. Memories of MacMahon and other things came to their aid and they knew and feared their Clemenceau, so M. Deschanel was substituted for M. Clemenceau. It was not merely a change in personality; it was a complete change in purpose. It meant that parliamentary France did not want a ruler. The Wilson regime did not appear to its instincts and it antagonized all its prejudices. M. Deschanel was the furthest extreme they could reach from that idea, so they deliberately picked him and an audible sigh of relief swept through the lobbies of Luxemburg and the Palais Bourbon.

The menace of presidential autocracy was over for the next seven years and the men who had pictured their ministerial future under M. Clemenceau as French Lansings under the Wilson harrow once more breathed the delights of ambitious prospect.

Then Fate, which rejoices now and again in adding fantastic trouble by way of variety to the real trouble it has brewed, hurled M. Deschanel from his eminence in circumstances of freakish tragedy.

Once more France was faced with the problem, not merely of who should be President, but of what powers the presidential sceptre should henceforth wield. M. Millerand was a reluctant recipient of the honor that the French Parliament so unanimously pressed upon his acceptance. But he made it quite clear that, if he accepted, he was not prepared to be a Deschanel or yet a frightful and futile Poincare.

Wilson Germ Fatal

The contrast between the relative positions of M. Poincare and President Wilson had sunk deeply into his memory, and he vowed he would not tolerate the convulsive impotency of the Poincare rule. His speeches at Evreux and elsewhere gave vocal expression to his determination to become a real effective President. Here he made a mistake from lack of self-knowledge. He saw himself fretting and fuming like his predecessor because his ministers were carrying out their own ideas and ignoring his advice and recommendation. But one intelligent glance at the looking glass would have convinced him that his temperament is essentially different from that of M. Poincare.

M. Millerand's facial expression gives the impression to dour calm. He has an appearance of stubborn taciturnity and no doubt he has obstinate impulses. This physiognomy, as all his friends know, encases a genial and kindly soul. At table, he is silent. If President Coolidge and he ever meet at a banquet, the master of ceremonies, if he wishes to make the affair a success, must arrange to wedge in between these two distinguished statesmen the joyous presence of Mr. Taft as an interpreter.

Fair South Shore Mermaids Are Given Stern Warning; Must Walk Wide and Wary of the Noble Life Guards

Florence M. Landrigan (standing) and Elizabeth K. Landrigan show how to be proper at Nantasket Beach.

Florence M. Landrigan shows a suit that is proper enough and a pose that may be proper enough—if a bit unnecessary. (Right) Betty Carter, in her abbreviated suit, displays what just gets by the law, but isn't too frightfully proper.

TWO DIE AS AUTO HITS PHONE POLE

Caroms Off Car Rails at Uxbridge; Girl and Escort Victims

Uxbridge, June 21.—Gertrude Murphy, twenty-seven, of the Blue Eagle Inn, Whitinsville, and Thomas McKarg, twenty-eight, of Whitinsville, were killed when a touring car caromed off street cars tracks into a phone pole at the Uxbridge-Whitinsville line today.

Sadie Durell, twenty-seven, also of the Blue Eagle Inn, Whitinsville, was cut about the egs and was taken home. The driver of the machine, Robert S. Wilson, twenty-nine, of Whitinsville, was arrested charged with reckless driving and held in $1 500.

Wilson told police the party were returning from a party in Providence. He said the heavy touring car was making about thirty miles an hour when it caromed off the street car tracks.

The car shot across the road, sideswiped a tree and crashed into a telephone pole, breaking it off short.

The impact sent Miss Murphy flying through the air and she struck on her head, fracturing her skul. McKarg also sustained a fractured skull.

They were rushed to the Whitinsville Hospital in passing machines but died on the way.

READY TO END LIFE IF SENT TO JAIL

Springfield, June 21. — Fearing she would be committed to Sherborn Reformatory for violating terms of her probation by returning to Springfield without permission of the court, Miss Rhoda White, 30, went to District court prepared to commit suicide if sent to jail.

Lieut. John P. Fleming had meanwhile interceded for Rhoda and Mrs. Katherine A. Carney, probation officer, gave her another chance and decided not to bring her before the court. Miss White then produced a bottle of iodine which was concealed in her clothes and declared she had intended to drink it if sent away.

COURT OFFICER DIES SUDDENLY

Leo A. Comforte, an officer of the Superior Criminal Court, died suddenly at his home in Chelsea. He was on duty until the session was adjourned. Although showing signs of illness he made no complaint.

DIVES TWICE TO RESCUE MAN

Hyde Park Man Drags Drowning Fisherman from Mill Pond

After two dives, in which he groped for a drowning man under water and hauled him up by the hair, Michael Flaherty of 80 Stoughton ave., Hyde Park, swam to safety with the unconscious form of Anthony Walataka, 45, of 23 A st., Hyde Park.

The rescue was made in the mill pond, River and Readville sts., after Walataka had slipped from the stone wall while fishing. Unable to swim, he was sinking for the second time when Flaherty leaped after him. They were part way to shore when Walataka slipped from the grasp of his rescuer, and Flaherty dived for the second time, seizing the victim by the hair.

Walataka was sent to the City Hospital for treatment, but his rescuer was able to go home after first aid at Station 18.

PHI KAPPA PSI TO MEET HERE THIS WEEK

Airplanes, boats and special cars have been chartered by members of the Phi Kappa Psi college fraternity in all parts of the country, who will gather in Boston June 25, 26 and 27 for the biennial Grand Arch Council, at the Hotel Somerset.

This will be the first time that this national college fraternity has ever helds its convention in New England. More than 500 undergraduates and alumni are expected to be present. The first business session will open June 25 with an address by Gov. Cox.

Carl Shumway, of Franklin P. Shumway Co., ski-jumper and naval aviator, is president of the Boston Alumni Association of Phi Kappa Psi. Joseph Billingsly of the Old Colony Trust Company is treasurer and Robert Harper, a Boston sales manager, is secretary.

TWELVE GAME-COCKS ORDERED 'EXECUTED'

Twelve game cocks will pay with their own heads the price of their prowess, it was ordered by the Framingham court following the arraignment of Earl Crosby, of Framingham, on charge of keeping and training game cocks. The court ordered the dozen fighting bantams "be humanely executed" when Crosby pleaded guilty. He was fined $200.

Only Girls Who Really Are Drowning Are Permitted to Be Rescued by Beach Adonises—The Ban On the One-Piece Bathing Suit Has Its Seasonal Recurrence.

Now that the bathing season is fairly under way, fair swimmers of the South Shore are being warned of two stern rules issued by the local authorities.

"No one-piece suits allowed."

"Girls must keep away from the life guards."

Cruel, cruel Chief Raynolds of the Hull police and Chief Bickford of the Metropolitan Park force will see to it that only garments with a little skirt are worn on the entire park reservation, and along the beach from Nantasket to Pemberton.

As for the handsome life guards—of course, girls, if you're really drowning, you may allow yourself to be saved by a stalwart swimmer though the law does not prohibit civilians from going to your rescue, so better not try the drowning stunt.

You may wear a regular honest-to-goodness swimming suit that will stand the water or you may sport the "peacock parade" kind, that "spots" when a drop falls upon it, but you positively must have a little skirt. No more "Annette Kellermans" that look as if you were poured into them. Furthermore, no more spooning on the beach, or ball-playing to divert the onlookers from hotel piazzas.

Couples who want to recline upon the sand in the evening must bring a foot rule and sit at least two inches apart. So say the cruel, cruel chiefs.

G. O. P. CONFERENCE ON THE MAYFLOWER

Washington, June 21.—The most important conference of Republican leaders since the Cleveland convention will take place this evening on the presidential yacht Mayflower.

President Coolidge has invited William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican National Committee, and several other political leaders and administration officials to accompany him on a cruise down the Potomac River to Quantico.

IOWA PROFESSOR SUCCEEDS CORBIN

Dean T. Lawrence Davis of Boston University announces that Dr. George C. Coffman of Grinnell College, Iowa, will succeed Prof. William Lee Corbin, former head of the English department of Boston University College of Practical Arts and Letters, as acting professor of English literature during the next college year.

Prof. Corbin has left the university to become librarian at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

AUTOISTS FREED IN SAFETY CAMPAIGN

Worcester, June 21.—Judge Utley today discharged without arraignment 57 motorists arrested in a campaign to enforce the regulation against driving through the safety zones.

The decision is based on the ground that in the absence of the fourth line, the safety zone is boundless on one side, and is, therefore, not a safety zone.

3 RUM RUNNERS TO BE AUCTIONED

Three of the ten rum-runners now anchored at the Army Base, South Boston, will be sold at public auction Friday.

These boats are in good condition and will be sold to the highest bidder, according to the terms of the sale. Every effort will be made to prevent their falling into the hands of their former owners.

15 YEARS FOR 'DEATH SUITOR'

Lepie Stabbed Hub Fiancee After Quarrel, Trapped in New Jersey

From ten to fifteen years in the State Prison was the sentence imposed by Judge Broadhurst yesterday on Thomas Joseph Lepie for causing the death of Mrs. Recheda George at No. 16 Pine street, on Christmas Day, 1923.

Lepie was a suitor of Mrs. George, who resented his attentions. Following an argument, Lepie stabbed Mrs. George in the leg, severing a vein, from which she bled to death.

Lepie fled, and after several months was located in New Jersey. He was returned to Boston and indicted for second degree murder, but the jury returned a verdict of guilty of manslaughter.

FIREBUG HUNT IN WEST ROXBURY

Series of Mystery Fires Cause Police Activity; Dwellers Alarmed

West Roxbury police are looking for persons they believe responsible for several fires, evidently of incendiary origin, in that section during the week.

Fire which damaged the third floor of the Charles Sumner School in Ashland street, Roslindale, yesterday is the latest mystery fire. A week ago yesterday a fire started in the hardware store of Louis Cardinal, No. 22 Poplar street. Kerosene had been poured through two holes bored in the walls.

Two buildings in Caledonian Grove, not far from the school building, recently were burned.

GIRL TRIES SUICIDE, FEARING PUNISHMENT

Fearful of punishment by her mother for staying out late, sixteen-year-old Louise Doars, of No. 109 Bowen street, Roxbury, attempted suicide by leaping from Harvard Bridge today.

She was standing on the railing when David M. Cohen, a taxi driver of No. 114 Shirley avenue, Revere, seized her and took her to the Back Bay police station. Mrs. Doars hurried to the station house where she forgave her daughter. Both thanked Cohen and departed for their home.

AIKEN GRILLED ON VANISHING OF BABY VIOLA

Police Now Believe Child, 3, Is Alive and Has Been Spirited Away

FATHER'S ALIBI DOUBTED

Chief Told He Returned to Natick Before Daughter Disappeared

North Smithfield, R. I., June 21.—Switching to the theory that Viola Aiken, three, mysteriously missing from the Mowry farm four weeks today, is alive, the police queried John Aiken, the child's father, today, in an effort to discover whether the child is hidden.

Chief Allaire of this town and Chief of Detectives Ahern of Providence gave Aiken a severe grilling today. He has maintained he knew nothing of the child's disappearance.

Aiken's original story was that he had been in a northern State for some time and returned to his home in Natick the evening of May 24.

Chief Allaire claims to have learned that Aiken, who was separated from his wife, was anxious to get possession of his three children, and that he returned to Natick the day before the child disappeared.

Police also summoned Mrs. Annie Keough, Aiken's mother-in-law, to come here for questioning today. When she failed to appear Chiefs Allaire and Ahern announced they would go to her home in Weekapaug near Westerly to interview her.

"I'll gladly support my children," Aiken told the police today, "if I can only get them back to me. But I will never take back my wife."

Mrs. Aiken is in jail awaiting a hearing on a statutory charge. She was arrested with James Graham, a former Providence motorman.

MISS CONVERSE TO WED HARVARD MAN

The engagement of Miss Virginia Converse to Paul C. Cabot, a Harvard graduate, was announced yesterday. Miss Converse is the daughter of Frederick S. Converse of Boston and Westwood. Mr. Cabot is the son of Henry B. Cabot of Heath street, Brookline.

Miss Converse is a member of the Junior League and the Vincent Club. She is the sister of Louisa Converse who married Junius Spencer Morgan.

QUICK JUSTICE FOR GIRL'S ASSAILANT

Greensburg, Pa., June 21.—Twelve hours after his arrest, on a charge of attacking Hilda Mork, Elmer Wilson, a negro, today pleaded guilty and was given the maximum sentence of seven to fifteen years in the penitentiary.

Crepe de Chine

The finely rippled fabric known as "crepe de Chine" takes its name from the French and Latin. "Crispere" is a Latin word meaning "to curl," which has gradually become the modern French "crepe." "De Chine" means simply "of China" or "Chinese."

All raw silk contains gum. For most silk fabrics, this gum is boiled off before the weaving process. Crepes, however, are woven first. The gum is removed later. If threads of the same twist were used throughout, the crepe effect would be lost. The warp in crepe de chine is made up of raw silk threads of the same twist. The weft or filling has double threads of alternate right-hand and left-hand twist. This is what produces the crinkled effect.

Crepe de Chine is a light, soft, lustrous silk. Ordinarily it is dyed in the piece, although it may also have printed designs. It launders well and is used mainly for lingerie, waists and dresses.

Crepe de Chine is an all-silk material. The Boston Better Business Commission has recommended to local advertisers that the phrase be used only to designate an all-silk fabric unless clearly qualified, as, for example, "crepe de chine—silk and cotton."

BOY, FRANKS' CHUM, HIDDEN FROM KIDNAPERS

LITTLE IRVIN HARTMAN IS SECRETLY SENT TO EAST

Wealthy Chicago Mother, in First Interview, Declares She Doesn't Fear Threat Against Life of Son, but Wishes Her Boy Kept Ignorant of the Plot to Kidnap Him for $10,000 Ransom.

Chicago, June 21.—"Yes, we have sent Irwin and his sister, Mary, to relatives in the East. Not so much because we feared for their lives, but because we did not want Irvin to know that his life had been threatened."

Mrs. Irvin H. Hartman, No. 5117 Ellis avenue, wife of the millionaire furniture manufacturer, today gave an interview, the first since her son and family were threatened with kidnaping and death.

She spoke very calmly and declared that neither she nor her husband was afraid of threats, but regarded them as the work of cranks.

Mr. Hartman received a letter and a telephone message Wednesday threatening violence and death to his son and his entire family if he did not pay the writers $10,000. He defied the threats and reported the matter to he police.

"The litle boy doesn't know his life has been threatened," Mrs. Hartman declared.

SENT TO EAST.

"On the day the newsboys were shouting 'extra' outside the house, selling the papers which contained an announcement of threat and Irvin was walking around inside imitating them and shouting 'extra' at the top of his voice.

"It has been very difficult to keep the papers away from them, but now that he is in the East it will be much easier.

"He is not a nervous child, but we don't want him to be frightened. He was very cool throughout this whole proceeding, even when he was called as a witness before the Grand Jury."

Mrs. Hartman displayed the same bravery as was shown by her husband when he shouted defiance into the telephone and slammed down the receiver on the demands of the would-be kidnapers and slayers.

NOTIFIED POLICE.

"Mr. Hartman and myself are not the least alarmed about the threats," she said. "I have been continuing my social activities and he has been going to his business as usual.

"We turned the report into the police as a matter of course. My only objection to the whole thing is the tremendous publicity it has excited.

"The only reason for our apparent secretiveness has been a desire to keep out of the headlines."

Mrs. Hartman expressed herself as desirous of having corrected the impression that she had suffered a breakdown because of her son's stellar part in the Franks case and the subsequent threats of kidnaping.

Irvin was a chum of the slain Bobby Franks.

Her appearance substantiated her remarks.

She seemed very well composed.

Meanwhile, today, the State's Attorney's office was making preparations for summoning young men and women who moved in the same circles as Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., for questioning, Monday.

TO GRILL STUDENTS.

Nearly all of those who will be asked to appear are students or former students at the University of Chicago. Though no names were announced, it is understood that the list includes Richard Rubel, a resident of the Madison Park Hotel, the most intimate friend of the boys.

Attorney Samuel Ettelson, who has co-operated with the State's Attorney's office throughout the case as the friend and adviser of the Franks family, will be present at the questioning.

The purpose of the inquiry was not made known, though it is understood as a move on the part of the State to offset any anticipated attempt of the defence to declare the boys insane.

Young Rubel was brought into the State's Attorney's office for questioning immediately before the boys broke down and confessed the murder.

NEW "THREAT" IGNORED.

He was an almost daily associate of Leopold and Loeb prior to the crime, the trio, with a fourth young South Sider, lunching together several times a week.

A new "threat" letter which occupied attention of police yesterday addressed to Chief Justice John R. Caverly of the criminal court before whom the confessed slayers were arraigned threatened Josephine Franks, sister of Robert who was slain.

Judge Caverly turned the letter over to Chief of Detectives Hughes who dismissed it with the observation that it had evidently been penned by "some moron who should not be dignified even with the name of crank."

"MYSTERY BOY" WHO HAD POLICE GUESSING

"Martin Goodrich, State ward, who was found wandering on Esplanade and refused for twelve hours to reveal identity.

FRANKS WITNESS FOUND IN BALTIMORE

Baltimore, June 21.—Irvin Hartman, ten, Chicago boy, whose life has been threatened by kidnapers unless $10,000 ransom money is paid over to them, and a prominent witness in the Franks murder case, with his sister, Mary, fourteen, was located today at the apartment of his grandmother, Mrs. Joseph Greenwald.

Dr. Irvin Speare, the boy's uncle, said he was brought here to rest after the steady questioning he had undergone since the murder of Robert Franks, several weeks ago, and not through any fear of his being kidnaped.

BOAT DAMAGES U. S. PLANE IN INDIA

Rangoon, British India, June 21.—A cargo boat last night collided with one of the United States army around-the-world airplanes, seriously damaging the wings.

It is expected repairs can be made by Tuesday when the aviators expect to leave for Calcutta via Akyab and Bashein.

LOST BOY IS 'CAL COOLIDGE OF STATION 3'

Three-Year-Old's Only Reply to 12 Hours' Questioning is "Huh!"

After driving Boston police to desperation by his steadfast refusal to be interviewed or to give any information concerning himself, a three-year-old boy found wandering on the Charles River Esplanade in the rain has been identified as a State ward and turned over to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The name he finally gave to the police was "Martin Goodrich." For more than twelve hours, during which he was cared for by police of Joy street station, the boy's identity was a mystery. The circumstances under which he was found led authorities to believe that whoever had accompanied him to the Esplanade had fallen into the river.

IDENTITY WAS MYSTERY.

Efforts to learn the boy's identity were complicated by absence of all evidence as to how he had reached the spot where he was found, staring at the river, and as to who had accompanied him.

During his twelve-hour sojourn at Joy street, the boy earned the soubriquet of "The Calvin Coolidge of Station 3." According to officers of that station, the President of the United States is loquacious compared with "Martin Goodrich."

The mystery began when the boy was found by a policeman, in the small hours yesterday morning, wandering alone on the river bank.

THOROUGHLY DRENCHED.

He was dressed in a sailor suit and blue sailor hat, and was thoroughly drenched. His blond hair, Dutch cut, clung to his cheeks, and the water "slogged" in his little shoes. He was evidently much diverted by night life in the great city, and was looking at the river with wonder, love and praise.

Having apparently a clear conscience, Martin did not run away when he saw the "cop," but preserved a stoical exterior when perched on the arm of the Law and carried off to the police station.

There, under repeated questioning, the only answer he gave for twelve hours was "huh!"

ROCKAFELLOW WINS COLLEGE TENNIS TITLE

NEW YORK, June 21.—Perrine Y. Rockafellow of Colgate is the New York State intercollegiate singles titleholder and Richard H. Marshall and Paul Kong of Columbia are the doubles champions as a result of victories today in the final round of the New York State Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills.

Rockafellow defeated Richard H. Marshall of Columbia, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, while the Columbia team of Marshall and Kong won the doubles title by vanquishing Rockafellow and Young of Colgate, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4.

CANADA JAILS 3 IN SMUGGLING PLOT

Montreal, June 21.—Miguel Maluquer, Spain's consul general at Montreal; Raymond Tey De Torrents and Albert Vincent, a manager of bonded warehouses, today were committed for trial on charges of conspiring to import alcohol into Canada.

An additional affidavit charged them with conspiracy illegally to import cocaine and morphine. They pleaded not guilty.

BRITTEN IS TO PUSH FIGHT FOR NAVY PROBE

Action Follows White House Denial Clique Controls Officer Promotions

By H. K. REYNOLDS,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, June 21.—Notice was served upon President Coolidge today by Representative Fred Britten, Republican, of Illinois, that he would vigorously push his demand for an investigation of the manner of promoting officers in the navy.

Britten's announcement followed an official statement from the White House to the effect that the President believed the present method of promoting naval officers was efficient and that there was no basis for the charge that a small clique of high officers were controlling the promotions.

"Because of the treaty limitations on ship tonnage," Britten declared, "it is more necessary than ever that the officers be very carefully and more sincerely 'selected up' for their special jobs, for it is in them that will rest the future efficiency of the navy and its value as a fighting unit.

"A seniority system which destroys incentive and ambition must also destroy the morals of the very backbone of the navy because promotion carries with it not only increased rank, but also great glory and advanced pay.

"The navy will have to work out its own salvation as promotion affects the entire line and every officer in it, and the quicker the remedy the quicker the restoration of efficiency and 'happy' ships."

Britten, who is a member of the House Naval Affairs Committee, pointed out that the "old plucking board" in the navy, which was used to retire officers when they had outlived their usefulness was abolished when Congress came to the conclusion that it would be better to make promotions on the basis of efficiency rather than to throw out men arbitrarily when they have served a certain length of time.

LEDOUX TO MEET CHARLIE HOLMAN

BALTIMORE, June 21.—Charlie Ledoux, bantamweight champion of France, and Charlie Holman of Baltimore, have been matched for a ten-round decision battle at the Sportland Heights open air arena at Berwyn, Md., just over the District of Columbia line, next Thursday evening, it was announced here today by a representative of the club management.

Holman recently knocked out Hilley Levine, of New York, at Berwyn.

TRIPLE DROWNING PUZZLES POLICE

Chicago, June 21.—An inquest today failed to clear the mystery surrounding the drowning of George Townsend, Mrs. Emma Mickelborough and Mrs. Ethel Bauer when a sedan plunged into a water-filled quarry near Elmhurst.

Authorities believe the victims stopped near the quarry and accidentally backed their car into the water. Mrs. Bauer was clad only in silk underclothing when her body was found.

THOUSANDS DAILY SEEK BONUS AID FROM HEARST BUREAU

INQUIRIES FLOOD OFFICE OF BOSTON ADVERTISER

Knotty Legal Points Regarding Applications and Eligibility to Receive Compensation Are Made Clear.

Thousands of letters from all over New England daily are reaching the Bonus Bureau of the Boston Advertiser and American, at No. 80 Summer street.

Every effort is made promptly to answer these inquiries regarding adjusted compensation for veterans.

Some of the questions are answered below. Read both question and answer; you may be helped with your own problem in this way.

MRS. A. L., WOONSOCKET, R. I.

Q. My son is a veteran of the World War, and is now at the Veterans Hospital in West Roxbury. Am I entitled to obtain a bonus for him if he is mentally unable to do so?

A. If your son is unable to make out an application for the bonus by reason of his mental disability, you may make it out for him, as his legal guardian. It will be necessary for you to apply to the court for appointment as guardian.

BAD CONDUCT DISCHARGE.

R. A., LYNN, MASS.

Q. I am a veteran of the World War and received a bad conduct discharge. Am I entitled to the bonus.

A. The bonus law provides that only those veterans who were discharged under honorable conditions are entitled to make application for the bonus.

T. E., MONSON, ME.

Q. How and where will I send my service papers to get the bonus?

A. If you are a veteran who was discharged from the service under honorable conditions, you may make application for the bonus and answer the questions in the application to the best of your ability, using the information contained in your discharge papers for that purpose. Do not send your discharge with the application.

M, M. W.

Q. Has the Director of the Bureau at Washington the authority to permit me to transfer my policy and make the same payable to whoever I wish?

A. The Bonus Law provides that a veteran may change his beneficiary with the approval of the Director of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau. The law prohibits a veteran from assigning his policy as security for a loan or for any other consideration.' Any assignment, sale or transfer in violation of the law is void.

A. L. M., HINGHAM, MASS.

NOTHING FOR BROTHERS.

Q. Mybrother was killed in France, and my mother, who was dependent upon him, died the following year. Do the surviving brothers and sisters inherit what would have been received as a bonus by their brother if he had lived?

A. If a deceased veteran left no unmarried widow or children under 18 years of age, and no mother or father who were dependent upon him for support at the time of his death, then the surviving brothers and sisters of the veteran are not entitled to receive any benefits under the Bonuus Law, no provision being made for them in the law.

J. M. C., WAVERLY, MASS.

Q.—I served for two years in the National Guard, and was called into service on March 25, 1917, and was discharged May 31, 1917, by reason of dependency. Am I entitled to the bonus, or is my mother?

A.—The Adjusted Compensation Act provides that members of the National Guard called into service by the President's proclamation of July 3, 1917, may count the days of service between the date of the call into service and August 5, 1917, both inclusive, and they shall be deemed to be in active service. You, therefore, will be entitled to make application for the bonus, and if the amount of your adjusted service credit is more than $50 you will be entitled to receive a twenty-year paid-up policy. You may name your mother or any other person as beneficiary.

HOW BONUS WORKS.

J. F. F., DORCHESTER, MASS.

Q.—Please let me know what kind of a policy I am entitled to receive and what is the shortest time I can draw on it?

A.—If you are a veteran of the World War and were honorably discharged from the military or naval forces of the United States, you are entitled to make application for the bonus. If the total credit to which you are entitled is $50 or less, it will be paid to you in cash, beginning March 1, 1925. If the total credit is more than $50 you will receive an adjusted compensation insurance certificate, which is a twenty-year paid-up policy, payable at its face value in twenty years from the date of its issuance, or in the event of your death, it will be paid to the beneficiaries named in the policy. You may borrow money, giving the policy as security, after two years from its date. The policies will have printed on them the conditions under which loans may be made, including a table of loan values based upon the age of the certificate and the age of the veteran.

MRS. R. H. Y., LINCOLN, MAINE.

Q.—My first husband, who was a World War veteran, died in 1921, leaving a daughter who is now three and one-half years of age. I remarried. Am I entitled to the bonus, or is my daughter?

A.—The fact that you have remarried bars you under the bonus law from making application to receive any of its benefits. The next in order of preference is your little daughter, and she will be entitled to the bonus upon application made in her behalf. Watch this column for news about application blanks.

HOW TO FIGURE.

P. E. S., PORTLAND, ME.

Q.—I was on active duty in the World War in the Navy from October 4, 1918, to February 15, 1919. How will my bonus be computed?

A.—The Bonus Law provides that veterans who served at home shall be entitled to $1.00 a day for each day of such service, and $1.25 a day for each day's service overseas, first deducting the first sixty days home service. If the total credit of the veteran is more than $50 a paid-up twenty-year endowment policy, payable at face value in twenty years will be issued to the veteran. If the veteran dies within the 20 years, the beneficiaries named in the policy will receive payment in ten equal quarterly installments. A veteran may name any person he wishes as his beneficiary. If the total credit is less than $50 the bonus will be paid to the veteran in cash.

GRANT QUIT TO WED, SAY FRIENDS

New York, June 21.—Friends of Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, the modernist leader who resigned the pulpit of the Church of the Ascension because of ill health caused by "leaky drain pipes in the rectory," today were predicting that the romance between the rector and Mrs. Rita De Acosta Lydig would be renewed.

Dr. Grant and Mrs. Lydig were engaged three years, but because of the vigorous objection of Bishop Manning of New York diocese they never were married. Bishop Manning's aversion to the union found its basis in the fact that Mrs. Lydig is a divorced woman. Only a few days ago Dr. Grant announced the engagement had been broken.

With his resignation rumors of a renewal of the alliance were current among the closest friends of the principals. Dr. Grant when asked directly concerning the reports declined to answer.

Young Edison's Firm in Hands of Receiver

Newark, N. J., June 21.

FAILURE of two inventions of Thomas A. Edison, Jr., to become commercial successes because of their cost to manufacture has resulted in a receivership for the Econometer Manufacturing Company of Orange. The company manufactured a gasoline-saving device and a period timer for autos.

Liabilities are $31,684, and assets $18,634, inclusive of a $10,634 patent value.

POLICE HUNT 2 RUNAWAY GIRLS

The police of Boston and Quincy were appealed to yesterday to locate two Quincy girls who have run away from their homes. The girls are Ethel Mae Randall, 10 Elliston road, 17 years, and Bertha Johnson of South Walnut street, 12.

It is thought they may have gone to Nova Scotia, as the Randall girl often expressed her intention of going there. The girls have been missing over a week.

The Randall girl was about five feet tall and weighed 120 pounds, of stocky build, dark brown long hair with brown eyes, a small scar on the right side of her mouth. She walks with a peculiar long step.

The Johnson girl is about four feet, eleven, bad light bobbed hair, light gray eyes, and a scar under her chin. She is of pale complexion and weighs 90 pounds.

FASCISTI ADMITS SLAYING DEPUTY

Rome, June 21.—Dumini, a Fascisti, one of the prisoners arrested in connection with the kidnaping and killing of Socialist Deputy Giacomo Matteotti, has confessed the murder, declaring it had been ordered by Signor Rossi, a former member of the Mussolini government; Giovanni Marinelli, a former member of the Fascist "directors," and by Filippo Filippelli, former editor of the Corrier d'Italiano, the most influential Fascist newspaper in Rome.

The King's prosecutor is changing his charge against Dumini from kidnaping and conspiracy to murder.

According to Massagero, ex-Chief of Police Dobono remained an intimate friend of Dumini after the crime and provided false passports for Fillippelli so he could leave Italy.

Democrats Angered by Statement Senate Was Full of "Thugs"

'FIGHTING PRIVILEGE"

Senator Green Charges Mill Owners and Bankers Prevent Reforms

Providence, June 21.—An end to the scenes in the Rhode Island Senate was in sight today when William C. Pelkey, chairman of the Republican state central committee, issued a statement which so roused the Democrats they declared they would continue their filibuster Tuesday morning when the Senate reconvenes.

Chairman Pelkey asserted that the twenty-one Republican Senators who fled the State would stay away indefinitely unless personal guarantees of their safety should be given by Governor Flynn.

The majority of the missing Republican Senators were said to be spending the week-end in Massachusetts.

What particularly incensed the Democrats, according to Senator John H. Green, a leader in the filibuster, was the reiterated charge that the Democrats had packed the Senate chamber with thugs, gunmen and underworld characters.

"INSULT," SAYS GREEN.

"This is an affront to the best people of Providence, irrespective of party," said Senator Green. "To say that the professional and business men who were attending the session, with a sprinkling of some of this State's best womanhood, are thugs and gunmen is so absurd it is insulting."

"Such tactics leave us Democrats nothing else to do but to continue the filibuster until the Republicans agree to give back to the people the power they so long have hogged unto themselves."

To which Pelkey replied: "The Republican Senators will never vote for the referendum calling for a constitutional convention."

The renewal of the deadlock followed a meeting called today by the Providence Chamber of Commerce and said to represent thirty business organizations of the State. A committee was appointed to confer with the leaders on both sides with the purpose of ending what was called a "deplorable situation."

"Conditions are getting worse," said President McDonnell of the chamber. "The State has ceased to function in its administrative capacity and it is time for us to offer our services to alleviate this serious situation."

FINISH FIGHT PROMISED.

"We welcome the efforts of any civic organization to put this question before the public in its true light," declared Senator Green, "but we are sceptical of so-called business organizations. They are too often but the tools of the privileged class we are fighting in this great fight.

"And before we are finished, I want to say that the people of these United States are going to be told exactly what is happening here—an attempt of the mill owners and the bankers to pull the wool over the people's eyes.

"We shall import speakers of national prominence. We shall make Rhode Island a battleground. We shall tell the United States just what happens under Republican government when the Republicans are in power."

Meanwhile the Senate has recessed until next Tuesday after one of the most startling sessions ever seen in a legislative body in this country.

It all arose over the Democrats insisting reforms should be made in the election laws by a constitutional convention.

FILIBUSTER SINCE JAN. 1.

The Democrats insisted a law should be passed allowing the people to vote whether or not they wished a constitutional convention called. The Republicans refused. The Democrats thereupon refused to take up any other legislation and started a filibuster that has lasted practically since January 1.

The Senate convened last Tuesday and was in continuous session until last Friday, when someone hurled a gas bomb which gassed the chamber. A recess was then taken until Tuesday.

Although the Republican Senators were reported to have fled the city and State, the Democrats refused today to believe it. Reports the Republican Senators were hiding in Boston were investigated, but none were found registered in any of the Boston hotels.

"Why should the Republicans flee?" asked Senator Green, the spokesman of the Democrats. "High Sheriff Jonathan Andrews and all his deputies are Republicans. Sheriff Andrews has refused to force his party members to attend the sessions on the ground that physicians have found them ill from the effects of a gas bomb.

CLASS WAR SEEN.

"Let's look the situation squarely in the face. This is nothing but the last stand of organized wealth to refuse the people their rights. Do you know that we have a law in Rhode Island which says that unless you own property you may not vote for any elective officer within the State who has the disbursement of money?

"Do you know that Rhode Island is the only state in the Country that has such a law?

"We Democrats want to call a constitutional convention to change that law. If a non-property holder is, as the law says, fit to vote for the President, or a United States senator or a congressman, we maintain he has the same fitness to vote for a town treasurer or selectman.

"We also want to reorganize the public utilities commission, which is responsible for the increase in car fares foisted on this State. We want to pass a 48-hour law for women and children.

MILL OWNERS BLAMED

"These measures cannot be effected without a revision of our constitution and that is why we are insisting and will insist on these reforms until the Republicans play fair and help us give the State orderly government.

"There is no Republican party in Rhode Island. The so-called Republican party is nothing but an organization of mill owners and bankers. Their chief concern is that exorbitant divedends be returned from the mills and factories. For the workers they care nothing.

"That is why, under Republican rule Rhode Island has always been a wide-open State. The mill owners and bankers never cared how much was drunk, or gambled or lost on horse races, so long as they were not interfered with in making the laws which favored privilege.

"We Democrats intend to change this condition through orderly forms of government. And we will, because we shall have the public opinion of the entire country behind us, which will force the Republicans to play fair and come to terms."

The Democrats have called a meeting for tomorrow evening at Fay's Theatre in this city. They promise to explain to the people then much of what Senator Green summarized to the Boston Advertiser tonight.

There are those who say, however, that the Republicans will never retreat from their position, and that the Democrats will continue their filibuster until the session automatically ends next December 31.

MOVE TO BLOCK BIG RAIL MERGER

Cleveland, June 21.—Application for a restraining order against the New York Central was filed in Federal Court today by the General Investment Co., a Maine corporation, which seeks dissolution of the merger between the New York Central and Big Four roads.

The Investment Company charges a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law and cites 19 violations.

DEMAND FOR HORSES GROWING IN AMERICA

Asbury Park, N. J., June 21.—Demand for horses is increasing in all parts of the country, Sec. William E. Murphy, today told the New Jersey Horseshoers Association.

A national survey shows light driving and saddle horses are in great demand. Horses are replacing motor trucks on short hauls.

PICTURESQUE CEREMONIES FEATURE MANY JUNE WEDDINGS

ELIZABETH TYSON RUSSELL BECOMES BRIDE IN MILTON

Three Clergymen Officiate at Each of Two Marriages—Other Couples Known in Hub Are United in Lynn, Framingham and Baltimore.

With the month of weddings drawing to a close, Boston girls eager to take their rank as June brides flocked to the altar yesterday, in a number of picturesque ceremonies. Yesterday's weddings showed an increasing tendency toward elaborateness, three clergymen officiating in each of two ceremonies, and in several other instances two clergymen.

Society buds and college men figured prominently among the newlyweds. With the advance of warmer weather, the tendency to hold wedding ceremonies and receptions at Summer homes was noticeable.

An unusual music program was a feature of the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Tyson Russell and Charles Kimball Cummings, Jr., which took place yesterday in St. Michael's Episcopal Church, Milton. The numbers included a transcription from "Hansel and Gretel," played by George C. Phelps; the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" and "O Perfect Love," sung by twelve choir boys; a solo by Earl Hudson, boy soprano; and the usual recessional.

The bride is a daughter of James S. Russell of Milton. Mr. Cummings was graduated from Harvard last year. Three clergymen officiated: The Rev. James DeWolf of Philadelphia, the Right Rev. James DeWolf Perry, Jr., of Rhode Island, and the Rev. Vincent L. Bennett of Milton.

The bridal party included three maids of honor, Miss Ruth Forbes of Milton, Miss Ethel Cummings of Boston, Miss Edith Ward, Milton; also Mrs. Henry F. Colt, Miss Leonora Trafford, Miss Sara F. Apthorp, Miss Theresa De Normandie, Miss Ellen L. Whitney, Miss Madeline R. Jacobs, Miss Nancy H. Hitch, Miss Marianne F. Harris; three flower girls, and Francis H. Cummings, Boston, brother of the bridegroom, as best man.

The couple will make their home in Cambridge.

McBRIDE—FLOYD.

At the Mission Church, Roxbury, Miss Mildred Lloyd became the wife of Charles Richard McBride, son of Chief of Police McBride of Cambridge. The Rev. James Gunn, C. SS. R., officiated at the nuptial mass. The bride was attended by the Misses Grace McCormick and Margaret O'Brien and Mrs. Clayton Jones. Malcolm McBride was best man for his brother. The ceremony was followed by a wedding breakfast at Riverbank Court, Cambridge. The bridal pair will live in Watertown.

Miss Laura Elliott, daughter of the Rev. E. A. Elliott of Cambridge, pastor of the United Methodist Church of Boston, was married to John Filmer Young of Lynn at a ceremony performed at the Harvard Street Methodist Church, Cambridge. The bride's father was one of three officiating clergymen, the others being President Murlin of Boston University and the Rev. D. C. Poland of the Harvard Street Church. After a honeymoon in the South, Mr. and Mrs. Young will live in Lynn.

The marriage of Miss Louise Hopkins and Ernest M. Parsons took place yesterday at "Blythswood," Swampscott, the Summer home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Charles A. Proctor. Mr. Proctor gave his sister-in-law in marriage. The bridegroom was a graduate of Harvard College in 1903. The Rev. Ashley Day Leavitt of the Harvard Church, Brookline, performerd the ceremony which was followed by a reception. Mr. and Mrs. Parsons will live in Brookline.

OUT OF TOWN MARRIAGES.

Among out of town weddings of interest to Bostonians is that of Miss Fern V. Hill and Henry C. Rowe, which took place last evening in Lynn. The ceremony was performed in the home of the couple, 106 Lafayette pk., by the Rev. Chester J. Underhill of the Washington Street Baptist Church. The matron of honor was Mrs. William Gillespie, and Walter Rowe, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The couple left for a wedding tour in Canada.

At the Normal School in Framingham, Miss Margaret Chalmers, daughter of Dr. James Chalmers of the Normal School, was married at the home of her parents in Horace Mann Hall. The bridegroom was Franklin Dugald McCormick. The bride's father officiated, and his brother, Robert Burns Chalmers, played the wedding music. The bride was educated at Wheaton College and Mr. McCormick at Bowdoin. They will live in Framingham.

"HOME FARM" BRIDE AT MILTON WEDDING

Mrs. Charles K. Cummings, Jr., who until yesterday afternoon was Miss Elizabeth T. Russell. They were married at St. Michael's Church, Milton.. An informal reception at "Home Farm," residence of Miss Russell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Savage Russell, followed. Mr. Cummings is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Cummings of No. 6 Joy street, Beacon Hill.

Sends $25,000 In Peonies To Wounded Vets

Kenosha, Wis., June 21.

MORE than 200,000 peony blossoms, worth $25,000 at market prices, were sent by Henry S. Cooper, retired manufacturer, to 18,413 wounded war veterans in government hospitals today, Mr. Cooper's birthday.

A number of years ago Mr. Cooper planted 13 acres in peonies and his gardens have become famous.

ST. PAUL'S TO GIVE OUTDOOR PAGEANT

Colorful Spectacle on Cathedral Porch Tonight Shows Christ's Teachings

An innovation in the way of church services will be the Pageant of the Beatitudes, to be given on the porch of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, at 9.15 p. m. tonight. In order that nothing shall interfere with the spectacle and the accommodation of the throng that will witness it, the street commissioner has ordered traffic suspended from 8.45 to 10.30 p. m. In case of rain the pageant will be given tomorrow.

The pageant illustrates the teachings of Christ. Between the tableaux, the two choirs of the Cathedral will sing.

The living pictures will show, among other things, the Three Marys, St. John and the Angel at the Tomb of Jesus; the Conversion of St. Mary of Egypt; St. Paul before the Greek Judge, Galleo; Sir Galahad finds the Holy Grail; the Martyrdom of Joan of Arc, and Love Triumphs Over War.

The pageant was written by Mrs. Anna O. Higgins. Miss Joy Higgins of the Community Service is director.

2,005 CHILDREN HELPED IN YEAR

Parents No Longer Resent Intrusion of Society With Long Name

The forty-second annual report of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children declared resentment formerly shown by parents towards the intrusion of the State into the family circles is on the wane.

Of 4,510 families investigated last year and involving 12,867 children, the report stated, less than 25 per cent. of the total number dealt with required court action.

And of the 2,005 children protected by court action, but 263 were permanently removed from their parents. This is a decided improvement over conditions in the past, the report says.

Statistics show also that 780 children by court order remained with their parents under court supervision to give parents another chance, while 825 adults were punished for neglect, 76 for non-support, and 87 for crimes against children.

BOSTON'S ONLY WOMAN EXPORTER RUNS BOSSLESS BUSINESS

MRS. ROBINSON EMPLOYS FOUR MEN IN FIRM

Entered Business World When Her Husband Died: Has Won Success

NEVER MISSES A DAY

Hub Woman Pioneer Finds Rest and Recreation in Auto Rides

Down in Boston's oldest commercial district is Boston's only woman exporter, who also claims the distinction of being one of the city's pioneer business women.

Twenty-four years ago she started out in the business world, a young girl, with so little knowledge of exporting that she had to work for "nothing a week" for sometime before she was entitled to even a small salary.

She is Mrs. Lillian C. Robinson, now the owner and general manager of the Robinson Export Company.

"I have done nothing remarkable," she will tell you when you meet her at her busy desk. "Circumstances put me into my first job with Mr. Robinson of this company, who later became my husband. Since his death a few years ago I have carried on the business."

BROKE HER HEART.

"It just broke my heart at first to have to go out into the world; I was distinctly domestic and could not bear to go out on a job," Mrs. Robinson said. "There was only one other woman in that street car which I took every day from Columbus avenue down to Atlantic avenue, where the business then was; she was a bookkeeper for a tobacco firm, and we got to be good friends and felt just like pioneers. There were only about twenty women working on State street then, where there are many thousands now."

Distinctly feminine is this successful business woman, whose dark hair and spirit of youth are difficult to reconcile with her two dozen years of experience.

She has simply grown up with her business, and now has a successful though conservative exporting firm dealing with hundreds of companies all over the United States. Newfoundland and St. Pierre are her exporting goals and she transacts "any business from getting a man's watch mended to building a factory."

Sometimes she gets an order to have a fishing vessel built for some customer and then charters the vessel and ships merchandise in it to others at the same destination.

FOUR MEN ASSIST

Every morning she is at her desk; the business now takes two floors of the building, and there are two stenographers and four men to assist. Her company has the added glory of no record of war profiteering when it was somwhat common in the exporting trade. "That is one reason why we still exist," she declares.

"Do I sometimes wish I had some other kind of a job? No, but sometimes I wish it were an easier job, and sometimes I wonder how I was fated to be an exporter when I wanted only to be domestic. A maid attends to my housekeeping now, but I sometimes do some cooking on my own account.

"And when I want a real change from business I hop into my car and go off on a wonderful trip through the country; that is my one big recreation."

NOBODY IS BOSS.

Like most people who have a business of their own, Mrs. Robinson has her own theories about how to manage things, and this is her strongest one: "Don't have any boss."

"Once a stranger came in," she will tell you, "and said 'Where's the boss?' 'We haven't anything like that around here' was the answer he got."

Each of her workers is as important as another; she lets them understand that the business cannot be run without each one of them. The justice of her theory is proved by the length of service all of her assistants have given her and the business has brought to her.

"A WOMAN DEVELOPS."

From her own experience, Mrs. Robinson believes it is a fine thing for a husband and wife to be in business together; it makes for congeniality and greater understanding of each other.

"I don't see why any woman can't run her own business, if she has had experience and opportunity, for a woman develops wonderful business qualities and initiative when put up against it and compelled to carry on a business by herself," she adds.

Geraldine Kelleher, as she looked while reducing and as she is today.

Advertiser Health Squad Winner, Fat All Her Life, Tells of Reducing From 175 to 135 Pounds.

By HAZEL STANTON

"I lost forty pounds without getting a single wrinkle!"

That's the proud boast of pretty Geraldine Kelleher of No. 10½ Common street, prize winner in the Advertiser's Health Squad work.

"'All you'll get for your trouble will be a set of wrinkles, a bad disposition and a careworn expression' my friends warned me when I joined the Advertiser Health Squad," explains Miss Kelleher.

"Now they're envying me because I really got thin and won a handsome watch at the same time.

"All my life I'd been fat. 'Such a healthy child' was a description that fitted me perfectly. And when I grew to be five feet six in height it only needed to be changed to 'such a healthy girl.'

"If my friends had been really truthful they'd have said 'fat girl' instead. I was really fat. Not just plump, but plain, ordinary fat was exactly my condition.

175 POUNDS TO 135.

"I weighed 175 pounds when I joined the Advertiser Health Squad which drilled in the Tyler st. gymnasium. And now I weigh 135 pounds.

"Before I started reducing my friends spoke of my statuesque beauty when they wished to be flattering. Now they tell me I'm a perfect boyish type. And I've the same face and same features.

"They tell me I've made myself over into a new girl."

It is hard for anyone meeting Miss Kelleher for the first time to realize that she has ever been anything but slender. Hers is not the haggard look of the woman who has just won a determined fight against fat.

Instead she seems a carefree, athletic girl who never has been forced to worry about diet or exercise.

Her bobbed chestnut hair has the sheen that only perfect health produces. Her complexion is the rosy schoolgirl kind which can't be bought at beauty parlors.

"DIET AND DETERMINATION."

"Diet, determination and exercise—those are the things that make a girl thin," explains Miss Kelleher.

"My first week as a member of the Advertiser Health Squad I lost three pounds, and I kept losing three pounds each week until the squad stopped drilling.

"Of course each girl has to learn the exercises best suited to her own needs. My favorite is one recommended by Samuel Smith instructor in charge of the ADVERTISER Health Squad, which drilled in the Tyler st. gymnasium.

"SURE TO LOSE WEIGHT."

"You begin by lying flat on the floor. Then you raise the upper part of your body slowly, with your arms outstretched, until you are sitting up and your fingertips touch your toes.

"Just try doing that one for ten minutes every night and morning and you'll be sure to lose weight. I spent ten minutes when I first got up in the morning exercising, and ten minutes before I went to bed. I followed my home exercises by very hot baths.

"Before breakfast every morning I took a brisk two-mile walk. Not a stroll, but a real walk, just as if I were in a mad hurry for something.

"I'm sure it wasn't the prospect of my breakfast that urged me to hurry. All I ate for breakfast was unsweetened apple sauce. I didn't drink tea or coffee.

"ONE APPLE, ONE ORANGE."

"My luncheon, while reducing, would have delighted any vegetarian. It consisted of just one apple and one orange.

"Dinner was my real meal. I ate chicken, steak, chops or eggs. I had all the green vegetables I wanted. But the only desserts I had were unsweetened fruits. I drank one cup of coffee or tea with my dinner.

"Sweets and starches were absolutely barred. No matter how tempting a piece of candy looked, I refused it. I had made up my mind I was going to lose forty pounds and I wasn't going to let a longing for candy keep me from reaching my goal.

"My hardest days were Monday and Thursday. The Advertiser Health Squad drilled those nights. And the gymnasium drill wasn't any make-believe drill. It was one hour of the hardest of hard work.

ONE DANCE A WEEK

"At first my muscles ached, but they soon got used to the work. I made up my mind I wouldn't miss a single session of the class and I didn't.

"Regularity is as essential for reducing. You can't expect to lose weight if you exercise only by fits and starts.

"Of course I'm not on such a rigid diet now, but I'm not taking a chance of gaining back even one of those 40 pounds. I'm shunning sweets and starches as bitter enemies.

"Next winter when the Advertiser Health Squad starts drilling again I'll be one of the first girls to sign up for the work.

PARIS SOON TO SEE U. S. BY WIRELESS

Telephotography, Frenchman's Invention, Will Flash Pictures by Radio

PARIS, June 21.—Telephotography by wireless will be so near perfect by the time the next President of the United States is inaugurated that photographs of the exercises will appear in next day's Paris newspapers, according to Edouard Belin, inventor of the apparatus for the transmission of pictures by radio.

In a comparatively short time, Belin said today, it will be possible to see, from his laboratory in Malmaison, people moving about in the United States. When it is possible to see people this distance by wireless, he added, they can also be photographed.

M. Belin expects to reach New York in September to begin experiments with trans-Atlantic transmission.

PICTURE SENT TO PARIS.

The inventor's new wireless process was demonstrated successfully for the first time when a photograph sent by radio was published in The Matin. The picture was a good likeness, but it bore several vertical smudges which it was necessary to eliminate by retouching.

M. Belin explains that the experiments now made, although conclusive so far as practicability of the invention is concerned, have given imperfect results because of unfavorable conditions.

New experiments, he said, will be made between Paris and London and Paris and Algeria.

These tests will be madel n August with an improved apparatus now in course of construction.

TO CROSS ATLANTIC.

"I am sure of success," said M. Belin. I believe I can send a photograph across the Atlantic by radio with perfect detail under conditions that will permit clear transmission of wireless messages."

He has been able to send between Malmaison, Annapolis and Bar Harbor stations drawings in black and white and printed texts. The photograph printed in The Matin was the first time half-tones have been successfully transmitted by radio.

Paris Consults U. S. on Soviet Recognition

Washington, June 21.

THE French government has moved to take up with the United States the question of the recognition of Soviet Russia. Premier Herriot initiated the inquiry in a note to Secretary Hughes, received by the French Embassy today.

According to reports in diplomatic circles here, France is anxious to recognize the Moscow government, but wants to sound out Secretary Hughes.

The United States during the Wilson, Harding and Coolidge administrations has consistently opposed the recognition of Soviet Russia.

3 HIT BY AUTO AT HOSPITAL GATE

Leaving as Visitors, Return as Patients; to Call Driver to Court

Ten minutes after four occupants of a sedan had left Charlesgate Hospital, Cambridge, where they had visited a patient yesterday, three of them were back in the hospital as patients.

Miss Emily E. Janes of 41 Grove street, West Medford, owner and operator of the sedan, had with her in the car her mother, Mrs. G. F. Janes; an aunt, Mrs. Emma Gray, and a young nephew, Francis Whitcomb. Leaving the hospital the car was struck by a touring car owned and operated by Michael Celata of 62 Liverpool street, East Boston.

The sedan was upset; the touring car was swerved aside and was stopped from going into the Charles river by the heavy iron fence along the sea-wall.

Mrs. Janes suffered a fractured right shoulder. Mrs. Grag was badly shaken up and cut about the head. Miss Janes was shaken up and scratched about the head. The boy was uninjured.

Celata will be summoned into court on a charge of operating an automobile to endanger lives.

SLAYER OF PAULINE KEYES STILL LAUGHS AT THE LAW

SEVEN YEARS OF PROBING FAIL TO CLEAR MYSTERY

Harriet Varney, Only Person Indicted in the Case, Was Acquitted by a Jury in Trial Which Held Interest of the Nation.

Seven years ago last Thursday grim tragedy stalked in the little apartment at No. 79 Kenwood street, Brookline, where George H. Keyes, real estate operator, lived with his bride of ten months.

On the day in question, the young wife awoke with a headache, and spent the morning intermittently puttering about her housework, and going to the door for a rest and a breath of air.

Her name was Pauline Biesenbach Keyes. Before her marriage she had been the stenographer of the real estate man, whose first wife had divorced him. The couple apparently were very happy together. On the morning of June 19, 1917, neighbors saw Keyes kiss his wife as he left for his business office at No. 132 Boylston street. Both seemed in good spirits and on the best of terms.

Upstairs in the same house lived Mrs. Grace Dakyn, one of the few neighbors with whom the newly arrived brides had become acquainted. Mrs. Dakyn, also engaged in housework, varied this with two or three trips to her garden.

Late in the forenoon her attention was arrested by a sound, thrice repeated, like three "slaps," she later testified. "Clap, clap, clap!" it sounded. Unable to account for the sound, she soon forgot it and continued with her gardening. Some time later, however, she smelled a strong odor of burning fat, emanating from the kitchen of the Keyes apartment.

Harriet Varney

The bride must have forgotten her cooking, was the neighbor's thought.

She ran to the back door of the Keyes apartment, and found it locked. Running around to the front of the house, she found the main door open—an unusual condition—and entered. Meantime, another neighbor, observing smoke issuing from the neglected stove, rang in a fire alarm. Apparatus responded just after the horrified Mrs. Dakyn had entered the dining room of the apartment. This is what they found.

Seated at the dining table, her head resting on her two arms, sat the young bride. Near one of her hands lay a revolver, three chambers emptied. On her head was a small wound, and on her right hand were two other bullet holes.

The dead woman was right-handed. On the table, near the revolver, lay a penciled note. It read:

"Dear George: I am suffering from a violent headache. I cannot endure it any longer. I have found you out. You have lied to me. Another woman has come into your life. I am sorry that it has all come out this way.

"Pauline Keyes."

An autopsy was held, and the first theory, based on the note, was that the young woman had committed suicide. Several features, however, invited further investigation, and after an exhaustive probe, the case was declared to be one of murder.

A few days later George Keyes, accompanied by two or three police officers, went to the home of Mrs. Arthur Morrison at West Upton. It developed that he had been in the habit of visiting a young woman who was staying there, and that he had been accustomed to call to her from outside the house.

George H. Keyes

He did so on this occasion. Miss Harriet Varney, a young nurse, and a girl of unusual beauty, sister of Mrs. Morrison, responded. She came down the stairs to meet Keyes. The officers placed her under arrest, and charged her with the murder. On the ride to headquarters, Keyes sat beside her and held her hand.

A probe into the young nurse's past life revealed that she had been friendly with Keyes for a number of years. The real estate man had first married in 1899, and his wife had left him in 1910. The following year he met Harriet Varney. She knew that he had a wife, but understood they were not happy together. With Keyes and Harriet, it was a case of love at first sight. Keyes bought her a ring, on the inside of which was inscribed "Jack to Hat."

According to evidence introduced by the prosecution at the trial, Keyes and Harriet Varney lived together, and he promised her that when he obtained a divorce from his wife, they should be married.

In 1914 Keyes was divorced from his wife. According to the prosecutor he did not reveal this fact to the young nurse who loved him. They lived together intermittently, it is charged, for some time further.

On her visits to Boston, Harriet used to call at his Boylston street office, and there she saw Miss Pauline Biesenbach, the stenographer.

Pauline Keyes

Two years after his divorce, Keyes married Miss Biesenbach, the ceremony taking place in New York city. Still he did not acquaint Harriet, the woman to whom he had given his promise, with his plans. He took his young wife out West, and from Chicago wrote Harriet a post card, reading, in substance, "Good-bye, old pal."

After his return, he encountered Harriet Varney at a dog show in the Mechanics building. She asked him to visit her at West Upton, her sister's home, and he is said to have told her that he was "living with his wife again." The nurse wept and their meetings were resumed.

Harriet at that time was employed as an attendant at the State Hospital in Providence, R. I. One day a woman went into a store on Westminster street, that city, and bought a revolver.

Early in June, 1917, found Harriet Varney again in Boston. She had given up her Rhode Island position, and met Keyes several times while making plans for other employment.

The State's account of the events which led to the tragedy was outlined by Assistant District Attorney William Kane.

"We'll show that on June 12 this woman was in Boston," he said. "That a woman telephoned to the National Realty Co. (Keyes' concern) and asked if Mr. Keyes was there. She pronounced the name 'Kyes.' The Varney woman always used that pronunciation.

"She was told that Mr. Keyes had gone for the day, and then the voice said, 'I'm his sister and I've come a long way. Can you tell me where he lives?'"

The information was given her incorrectly, the prosecutor said, and she was directed to 89 instead of 79 Kenwood street. Neighbors, however, testified that they saw a woman answering Harriet Varney's description looking in at the window of the Keyes flat.

Was it Harriet Varney who made that stealthy trip to No. 79 Kenwood street to have a look at the wife of the man she loved? Was it Harriet Varney who, instead of finding the middle-aged, gray-haired woman with whom Keyes had given her to understand he was living, found instead a pretty and youthful bride, whom she could never hope to supplant?

These questions were answered by a jury which, six months after the shooting, said that Harriet Varney was "not guilty" of the crime.

According to the prosecution, when Harriet Varney came up to Boston in that fortnight before the tragedy, she visited a lawyer and asked him if George Keyes had ever obtained a divorce. They made an investigation into the court files, it was charged, and found the record of Keyes' decree.

On June 19, the day of the shooting, Keyes met Harriet Varney about noon on Boston Common, according to the prosecution, and took her to lunch on Charles street. She had told him she was hungry, but ate very little, it was alleged. After leaving him, she went to Mattapan, where she had obtained a position in a local sanitarium.

She went out there that night, according to testimony, but left the next morning for good, without giving any notice. The time of her meeting with Keyes, followed by luncheon, was directly after the tragedy had occurred, and before the husband had learned of the death of his bride.

According to Mrs. Arthur Morrison, sister of the accused woman, Harriet and Keyes were married. He was known to the nurse and her family as "Jack" instead of George.

The State's contention was that the the so-called "death note," at first popularly believed to be the farewell letter of a suicide, was not written by one person. They alleged that Mrs. Keyes had written the first two sentences, and that the letter had been finished by someone else, putting another construction on the words, "I cannot endure it any longer."

A woman who intended to commit suicide, it was argued, never would bother about writing of a headache. If the young bride had reason to believe that another woman had come into her husband's life, would she dwell upon a physical ailment which, however painful, would look very small compared with the tragedy of a disillusioned love?

On the other hand, the State contended, what an opportunity was offered to the slayer, by the sight of the note which the young wife had partially finished!

"I cannot endure it any longer." Only a word or two to indicate a cause for mental anguish, and the murderer's work could be turned into a semblance of self-destruction.

It was brought out at the trial that the dead woman had recently sent for some household article which she was expecting by mail. On the morning of the tragedy, and only a few minutes before the fatal shots were fired, the letter carrier arrived at the Keyes apartment with the parcel.

He rang the bell, he said, the door being ajar, and inside the apartment he saw a woman's figure and the flutter of a skirt. Assuming that the mistress of the house was at hand to receive her parcel he laid it on the threshold.

That parcel was never received by Mrs. Keyes. It lay on the threshold of the door until the firemen arrived.

Was the young bride on her way to pick up her mail when she was confronted with her assassin? Had she written the first few words of the mysteriously baffling "death note," interrupting them to go to the door when the postman rang? Was the murderer already in the house when the letter carrier and his companion appeared at the door, potential rescuers, had but the truth been known?

No one will ever know, unless the slayer of Pauline Keyes is found.

The GLOUCESTER MYSTERY

by MAYSIE GREIG

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

HELEN STANTON, beautiful girl, bred in luxury, is suddenly left alone in the world when

"MUMSIE" Stanton dies.

RALPH STANTON, an inebriate nephew of "Mumsie."

IVY HENDERSON, portrait artist, friend of Helen.

ROBERT CUNNINGHAM, friend of Ivy.

GORDON LYN, middle-aged patron of Ivy.

MRS. BEATRICE HAMILTON, his sister.

PETER KEMBLE, frequent guest at the home of Mrs. Hamilton, and a frank admirer of Helen.

By MAYSIE GREIG

(Copyright, 1924, by Maysie Greig.)

HELEN STANTON stood by the window in the great drawing-room looking down to where the spray broke in tiny flecks of glittering silver on the rugged Gloucester coast line.

She saw, by the white light of a full moon, stretching all around her the grounds belonging to the Stanton estate and beyond them the sea.

As she gazed down the girl's face was pensive, wistful. Tragedy lurked in her great brown eyes.

From earliest childhood Helen had been passionately devoted to her home, making herself familiar with every nook and corner of the vast grounds, and since the death of the man whom she had been brought up to regard as her father she had supervised the management of it herself.

There was something strangely pathetic and appealing about her as she stood there in a flimsy black georgette frock that revealed through its folds the outline of her slim young figure. She was of medium height with a pale oval face framed by a shining mass of red gold hair.

Two weeks before she had been a gay laughing girl happy in the life on the estate, devoted to the woman she had thought her mother.

Two weeks ago that very day the double blow had fallen. Even now the recollection of it all was so cruelly vivid in her mind that she closed her eyes trying to shut out the details of that heartbreaking scene.

Her mother an invalid for many years, had on that day succumbed to a paralytic stroke, and, realizing that she was dying, she had summoned both Helen and the family lawyer to her bedside.

With her wrinkled hand caressing that of the girls, she had at last murmured brokenly:

"Helen—child—I have something to say which I fear will hurt you cruelly. I thought, when my time came, it would be easy to pass on and carry my secret beyond with me. But now something makes me frightened. Helen—dear child, I have wronged you—" She coughed nervously and hesitated as though distrusting herself to continue.

Helen stared at her in dumb wonder, tightening her clasp on the invalid's white hand. Then, with an effort, the older woman went on: "You—Helen, forigve me—you are not my daughter. You do not even belong to the Ashford family."

FATAL WORDS.

Even now Helen could hear those fatal words ringing in her ears; even now they still had power to call up in her the amazement and horror she had felt at the time.

Presently the dying woman had continued and her words came like a moan.

"Don't stare at me like that, child, I can't bear it. You may think me mad. Indeed, I wish I were, but the proofs of my statement will be found in that box on the table."

Momentaraly she covered her eyes with her hand and then continued slowly: "When we first married my husband disered a child ardently while I——" she broke off abruptly, making a hopeless little gesture with her hand. "It threatened to ruin our happiness so, in order to keep his love, when he was away in Europe for some months I passed off you—a child of unknown parentage, on him, as my own baby girl."

The invalid's voice trailed away and she closed her eyes as if the exertion had been almost too much for her.

Helen stood by the bedside dazed; her big brown eyes starting into vacancy. Her brain refused to grasp all that had just been told her. It all seemed incredible—unthinkable.

Who was she then? Somehow that did not seem to matter since the name, of which she had been so proud, was not rightly hers. And the estate, what of it?

As if the dying woman had been uncannily following the working of the girl's mind, she opened her eyes and spoke again.

"I feel that it is only right that the estate should be kept in the Stanton family. My husband's nephew, Ralph, must inherit it. But you, my child, will be amply provided for. My private money goes to you. And should anything happen to Ralph, I have named you, my adopted daughter, as the next heir.

Twin Emotions

Helen remained standing there as though she had been turned to stone. Two strong emotions were surging within her, fighting for supremacy. Her love for the woman whom she had always thought her mother, and the horror she felt against the cruel trick that had been perpetrated upon her.

If only she had always known—if only she had never been allowed to think that the Stanton name and estate were rightfully hers.

"Helen—Helen—forgive!"

The faint voice from the bed aroused her to the consciousness of the moment. Blindly she turned towards the invalid. "Mumsie—dear," she whispered brokenly, as she knelt by the bedside and clasped the dying woman's hand in hers.

The last rays of the sinking sun came in through the window and caught the bowed chestnut head, making it shine like burnished gold in the waning light. Whether minutes or hours passed as she knelt there Helen never knew before the doctor came and lead her very gently from the room.

Two weeks passed since then. Two weeks of untold misery for Helen, for, since the arrival of Ralph Stanton and his mother for the funeral, she had been made to feel more or less as an usurper in the house. She was now only waiting a suitable opportunity to leave for good.

She turned from the window and as she did so she saw Ralph standing leaning against the doorway watching her with a faintly ironical smile.

"Hello, Helen. Still bearing me a grudge?"

Helen flushed slightly, conscious of the half veiled sneer in his voice, but she managed to answer with apparent calmness.

"Nonsense, Ralph. I only hope that you'll be very happy. You know I have nothing against you."

Helen's Anger

"Then why are you so darned cold?" grumbled the man as he came into the room and seated himself on a corner of the table. "I don't see any reason why you shouldn't stay on here for a bit. You're a pretty enough kid and I guess you know that I like pretty things about the place."

It was not so much his words but the tone in which he said them that made Helen angry. He always made her feel that the heiress to the Stanton estate and an adopted girl of unknown parents were two totally different beings in his eyes.

He had been drinking and her silence goaded him on to say: "I suppose you'd be damned glad if anything should happen to me. I don't want to discourage you, but I'm going on for a good many years yet! Come now," he crossed over to her and took hold of her arm. "Let's kiss and be friends. You look fine in black. It seems to suit you."

But he had gone too far. With her eyes blazing with anger, Helen snatched her arm out of his hand, and turning her back on him, she walked out of the room.

"I can't . . . I won't stand it any longer!" Helen spoke aloud without knowing it as she ran up the wide staircase to her bedroom. Without troubling to switch on the lights, she sank down on a large black chaise lounge and suddenly, burying her face in her hands she burst into great dry sobs born of her shame and mortification. She hated them all and above all she hated the humiliating position in which she was now placed. To have been mistress of this house for so long, and then to find herself merely allowed to remain on sufferance!

A Decision

She felt that she would go mad if she did not leave at once. But where could she go? Boston? Yes, it was a large enough city to enable her to start afresh under a new name and forget.

She had always liked Boston and besides she had an old schoolmate of hers there, Ivy Henderson, whom she was sure would put her up.

Ivy was a portrait artist with a studio on St. Botolph street. Perhaps, Helen thought, later she would take up art herself. As a college girl she had been considered quite good at it. The idea appealed to her and that moment she felt happier in her mind than she had done since her foster mother's death.

For a long time Helen sat there planning. Once, she thought she heard a noise below like footsteps, long after everyone had gone to bed and the murmur of voices in the garden below. Then, some time later came the sound of a thud. But Helen was too occupied with her own thoughts to pay any attention to these disturbances.

She had decided to leave in the early morning before any of the family were up. Later she could write to them from Boston of her whereabouts. In that way she hoped to avoid any unpleasantness that her abrupt departure might cause her.

She spent the night in packing and as the first rays of light, heralds of the dawn, crept through the east, she picked up her suitcase and started silently to descend the staircase. The remainder of her luggage, she thought, could be sent on to her later.

IVY'S STUDIO.

Some hours afterward she arrived in Boston.

It was a bright midsummer day with sunshine flooding the streets as Helen taxied from the North Station to Ivy Henderson's studio. The front door of the building was ajar and pushing it open Helen found herself in a long dark corridor. At one end was a narrow staircase and as she climbed up Helen felt almost light hearted.

"Ivy—Ivy!" she called as she neared the top landing, but there was no response and upon reaching the door, Helen found a note pinned upon it saying that Ivy would be out for the day.

Helen read it with a keen sense of disappointment. The sense of adventure which had buoyed her up since her arrival in town now seemed to desert her and she suddenly felt very alone and friendless. She wondered what she would do with herself until Ivy returned. Then she remembered the parting words of her chum the last time they had met.

"If you're ever in town when I'm not there don't hesitate to use my studio. I keep the key behind the picture in the hall."

Under the circumstances it seemed the only thing to be done, so without losing time, Helen located the key and let herself in.

The room was in the usual state of chaos which she always associated with Ivy's artistic temperament. Books and clothes were scattered about the floor but it was a cheery little place with bright cretonne covers and cushions of striking jazz designs. Helen changed from her black frock into an old painting overall of Ivy's and proceeded to clear up. Then, as she had had no rest the night before, she lay down and was soon fast asleep.

PREMONITION.

Dusk was falling, softly shrouding the gray stone buildings, when Helen finally awoke. She awoke with a start and was immediately conscious of some vague premonition of evil which she was at a loss to explain. She wondered if it might not be due to hunger, so, having unearthed a kettle from the recesses of a cupboard where Ivy kept everything from dance frocks to kitchen utensils and groceries, she soon made a cup of tea and was just cutting some bread and butter, when a knock sounded on the door.

She hesitated before answering it, and then crossing the room she opened the door.

"Is Ivy in?"

Helen found herself staring up at a tall pleasant looking man who was smiling down at her. He was quite attractive with thick brown hair and blue grey eyes, that held a whimsical smile in their depth. For some reason Helen felt a warm friendly feeling creeping over her. Somehow she knew that she was going to like this man.

"No," replied the girl, "but I expect that she'll be back in an hour or so."

The man appeared undecided what to do. As he stood there he thought what a pretty picture she made framed in the doorway wearing Ivy's green overalls, splashed with paint. Stray whisps of reddish hair escaped from the hastily made coil that surrounded her head and fell over her face accentuating the pallor of her cheeks.

A Pal of Ivy's

"I'm afraid I can't wait that long," he smiled. "You see I promised to take her to a dance tomorrow night, but unfortunately, I've got to be out of town for the next few days. My train leaves in an hour's time. Would you mind if I came in and scribbled her a note?"

"Of course not," said Helen, as she led the way into the room. She found him paper and pencil but he seemed in no hurry to start the letter.

"I suppose I ought to introduce myself," he remarked presently. "My name's Cunningham. Robert Cunningham. But Ivy and her pals all call me Bob. Please do the same."

Helen found herself unable to resist his smile.

"Very well, then, Bob," she said, and laughingly they shook hands.

"Have you been staying here long?" he asked her.

"No, I only came up from Gloucester this morning." She made the remark naturally, for under the influence of his personality she had forgotten, that upon reaching Boston she had determined to sink her identity. But as she spoke the man started perceptibly, and the girl felt that he was staring at her strangely, almost as though he had just seen her for the first time.

Just then his eyes happened to stray to Helen's suitcase which lay on the floor with her name stamped on it. Again he started and a strange expression came into his eyes. The girl wondered at the evident change in his manner. It seemed as though some unexplainable barrier had suddenly risen between them.

A MURDER.

He turned abruptly from her and having hastily scribbled the note, he grabbed for his hat.

"Thanks awfully for entertaining me," he said, and was gone, leaving Helen staring after him in speechless amazement unable to account for his peculiar behavior or for his abrupt departure.

He had left his evening paper behind, and idly picking it up, Helen sat down to continue her meal.

Suddenly, with a cry, she let her cup slip to the floor as she sat staring at a photograph of herself. Underneath she read:

"The missing girl, Miss Helen Stanton, who left Gloucester some time before 8 this morning and has not yet returned. The police are hearching for Miss Stanton in the hope that she may be able to throw some light on the tragedy."

Helen stared at the likeness of herself in growing bewilderment. What did it all mean? What tragedy were they referring to? She glanced higher up the column and immediately her eyes grew wide with horror as the headlines leaped out at her:

YOUNG HEIR FOUND MURDERED.

GRUESOME DISCOVERY AT GLOUCESTER.

Scarcely knowing what she was doing, she read on:

"A terrible discovery was made at the home of Mrs. Stanton in Gloucester this morning at 9:30, when a maid, entering the study, found the body of her young master, Mr. Ralph Stanton. He was lying on his back with a ghastly wound on his right temple, which had evidently been inflicted by a knife lying near the body. Mystery is added to the case by the strange disappearance of his foster cousin, Miss Helen Stanton, who left the house unobserved some time before the tragedy was discovered. Her bed had not been slept in and no one in the house was aware of her intention of departing. . . ."

The paper slipped from Helen's hands. She felt sick; a strange dizziness was creeping over her and as she tried to rise she found that her feet would not support her weight.

'$3,000 OR BOY!' KIDNAP THREAT

Hagerstown, Md., June 21.—United States postal authorities are working to ascertain the source of an anonymous letter demanding $3,000 for the kidnaping of his son, received by Harry E. Keedy, a wealthy business man.

The letter was mailed Monday morning from the local postoffice. It reads:

> Mr. Keedy:
>
> $3,000 or the boy. Red light in upper window will indilate willingness to pay money. Orders will follow.
>
> BIG JOE.

The red light was displayed as demanded in the letter, but up to the present time no word has been received. Special police guards have been placed about the boy's home.

WOMAN CHOICE IN NEW JERSEY

New York, June 21.—Mrs. Robert Norton of Jersey City will be the first choice of the New Jersey delegation, it is reported. This will be the first time that a woman's name has been presented to a political convention of either of the two major parties.

Mrs. Norton's vote, it is admitted, will be entirely complimentary, as the delegation is committed to Governor Silzer as its favorite son, and in the real test will swing its votes to Smith. However, Mrs. Norton's boom is interesting as the first specimen of "favorite daughter" that has blossomed in national politics.

Mrs. Norton is at present vice chairman of the State Democratic Committee and is a delegate-at-large. She intends to run for Congress this Fall.

RESPITE FROM DEATH SENTENCE FOR SCOTT

Chicago, June 21.—Russell T. Scott, former Toronto promoter who turned robber and pleaded guilty to the murder of Joseph Maurer, drug clerk, during a holdup, today received another respite from a possible hanging sentence.

Another attorney has been retained, and he believes he can show good cause why the sentence should not be pronounced.

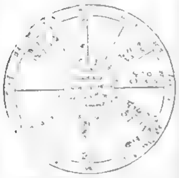
MRS. COOLIDGE IS RULED BY MOON, HER HOROSCOPE REVEALS

FIRST LADY STANDING AT FORK IN ROAD

Boston Astrologer Sees Her Choosing Ordeal of Severe Trials



MRS. COOLIDGE'S CHART

Mrs. Grace Goodhue Coolidge, wife of the President of the United States, is at a parting of the ways according to the stars, as revealed in her horoscope.

On the one hand [illegible] the road to further high honor through re-election of her husband as chief executive of the nation.

On the other [illegible] new path [illegible] [illegible] at present Coolidge [illegible]

[illegible] to the future Mrs. Thompson issues a warning against [illegible] political course and predicts that in 1944 conditions will be ripe for another war, probably a civil war.

RULED BY MOON.

Mrs. Coolidge, says the astrologer, is ruled by the moon, she has many friends among well-bred women, is a born teacher, "insatiable for intellectual growth," is "loving, kind hearted and secretive."

She is a victim of too much laughter, made necessary by her social duties as Lady of the White House. This depletes the nervous force and all the White House mistresses have suffered from [illegible].

Mrs. Thompson [illegible] that Mrs. Coolidge [illegible] her husband.

The horoscope was drawn after Mrs. Thompson had written to Mrs. Coolidge's mother and obtained from her the exact date and hour of her birth.

"Mrs. Coolidge's mother wrote that her daughter was born on Friday, Jan. 3, 1879, at 4:40 p.m. at Burlington, Vt.," runs the horoscope.

"A DEEP THINKER."

"This lady therefore was born with cardinal and changeable signs on the four angles of her nativity, showing that many changes must come into her life. Under the Crab [illegible] ruled by the [illegible] Mars which is placed [illegible] in Taurus [illegible]

"The Moon [illegible] next to [illegible] the Sun, both [illegible] in the House of Marriage, cementing the sympathy and friendship that exists between her husband and herself.

"Mrs. Coolidge is a deep thinker and a natural teacher, insatiable in her desire for intellectual growth, proud, independent, high-minded, and indisposed to labor with her own hands, save in the furtherance of some plan which promises better things.

"She is a natural reasoner and philosopher, both executive and determined in all she does and with a desire to be recognized as the [illegible] understood. She has a fine nature with a high [illegible] of love, harmony and beauty, is loving, kind hearted and secretive.

"SHE BORROWS TROUBLE."

"She is an indefatigable worker, but apt to tire quickly, because she usually does several things at a time, and though she will work for herself without stop or stint, she would become very restless if harnessed long to work for others. Sometimes she borrows trouble when not necessary, or magnifies her [illegible] and perplexities [illegible]

"[illegible] makes her very intelligent, with keen powers of understanding. She loves her home and family, and is somewhat over anxious about living up for the future. Is kind, loving and sympathetic, and [illegible] with a clutch of determination and purpose. Sometimes she might let go if her feelings were hurt.

"She [illegible] to argument and cannot readily be talked out of a thing once her mind is made up. She likes to give advice and to be consulted in important matters, and will readily take the lead in whatever position she finds herself called upon to fill. She also likes to dress well.

"FOND OF CHANGE."

"She is fond of travel and change, has a sensitive nature, is quick to resent criticism, and though comfortable and happy during the day, sometimes she might feel unhappy or depressed at night through having [illegible] out too much of her forces, or from excessive laughter, which all the ladies of the White House affect, as it depletes the nervous system [illegible]. Mrs. Coolidge is very kind [illegible] ness and friendship [illegible] efficient when the responsibility rests upon her.

"Her best friend is [illegible] born in the months of May and September. [illegible] tendency to indigestion which might bring on melancholy and she could become a victim to overwork or die in harness as Roosevelt did, as they are both strong Capricorns. She could also suffer from weak digestion, gastric and stomach trouble.

"SIMILAR TO WILSON'S."

"Mrs. Coolidge has a very remarkable horoscope, and one similar to Woodrow Wilson's, who was born with Saturn the Greater Infortune in his midheaven or House of Honor, and the Ancients said it denoted a great rise with a marvellous [illegible] followed by almost as great a fall to misfortune or ostracism or unhappiness of some kind. Napoleon Bonaparte had the same position of Saturn in his House of Honor.

"It is very unusual to find such a powerful position of such an evil planet in a lady's horoscope, but we notice that Saturn here rules the Seventh House or House of Marriage and so it refers to her husband rather than to herself, showing a great rise for him with an ultimate set-back of some sort.

"A WEAK DIGESTION."

"The end of her life is ruled by Mercury retrograding in the Sixth House of Sickness and within [illegible] of an exact square evil aspect of Saturn, so that the downfall will be due to the illness of her husband, and as the Sixth House rules the stomach, it shows a weak digestion which could be aggravated by anxiety over papers, news, writings, criticisms or reports connected with the government.

"She will have to look after the [illegible] of her husband.

"The same [illegible] along in families, and Mrs. Coolidge's mother has lost her husband, and the daughter should likewise.

TWO PATHS OPEN.

"Two paths today [illegible] the degeneracy and decay [illegible] towards [illegible] and revolution."

ELKS ARRANGE BIG WEEK FOR RADIO ADDICTS

Forty-Five Bands to Blare Out Glad Tidings That They Are Here, July 8

ALWAYS SOMETHING ON

Ether Waves Will Be Hard Pressed to Carry Events That Are Scheduled

Forty-five bands, and fifteen glee clubs will be massed about the Parkman bandstand, Boston Common, to render "The Star Spangled Banner," as the closing number of the "Patriotic Day" celebration of the National Elks Convention to be observed, as it is relayed from coast to coast from the Shepard Stores studio station WNAC.

The radiocasting from WNAC for the entire convention will be in charge of Joseph M. McDowell, George P. Elms of [illegible] lodge and T. J. [illegible] of [illegible] Lodge. The WNAC [illegible] turned over to the Elks [illegible] week of the convention [illegible] feature possible to [illegible] the [illegible].

On Monday from 11 a. m. to 3 p. m. there will be band concerts by various Elks bands [illegible] the country. [illegible] through [illegible] week [illegible] entertain [illegible] as well as [illegible] concert [illegible] and [illegible] which [illegible] organ [illegible].

500 IN CHORUS.

At [illegible] Monday evening the chorus of [illegible] voices [illegible] will open the Grand Lodge reception with [illegible] followed by speaking by Senator Walsh, Governor Cox, Mayor Curley, Daniel J. Kane, exalted ruler of Boston Lodge and Grand Lodge officers.

Also Monday night the Elks' Glee Club of Columbus, O., will make its first appearance in the East.

At the close of the exercises at Mechanics Hall, the hall will be thrown open to dancing, and the microphone will be left open so that the radio public may have the benefit of the music [illegible].

Tuesday, Patriotic Day, will have a necessarily long radio program. This will start at ten o'clock in the morning and will [illegible] with the mass demonstration before the Parkman bandstand. Mayor Curley will then deliver his $75,000 Eleven O'Clock Toast.

TO BROADCAST PARADE.

Although Wednesday has been selected as "Nantasket Day," a fine radio program has been arranged. In the evening a concert will be given at the studio by Atlanta Lodge, the program for which will be built around the Royal Purple Band of that lodge. The Royal Purple Band is a favorite at station WSB, Atlanta, Ga., and the announcements will be made by Lambdin Kay of Atlanta Lodge, who is also the official announcer of the Atlanta station.

Thursday the parade will be broadcast. Friday will be featured by band concerts and the program for radio on Saturday will last until late at night when the farewells of the visitors will have been shot through the air.

Malden Clerk Detects Forgery —Two Lawrence Men Held

Lawrence, June 21.—Police of this city and Boston today began search for one of the cleverest forgers that has operated here for many years.

A truck owned by Sam Carlo, No. 101 Commercial street, and Ernest Hoole, No. 68 [illegible] street, appeared at the office of the Converse Rubber Shoe Company, auto tire manufacturers in Malden, where an order calling for delivery of twenty-eight auto tires was presented, signed with the name of Joseph Murgio, proprietor of Oak Street Garage, Lawrence.

John Melo, clerk, telephoned Murgio, who said he had not signed the order. Melo then dismissed the two men on the truck, but took its number.

Carlo and Hoole were arrested in Lawrence and arraigned in Malden on a charge of attempted larceny. The case was postponed until July 1. Police are now looking for the man who signed the name of Murgio.

GERMANY NOW SAFE FROM ARMED REVOLT, SAYS WEISMANN

ONLY LOCAL RIOTS POSSIBLE HE TELLS VON WEIGAND

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

Berlin, June 21— A revolt which would endanger the government is impossible in Germany today. It is possible and even probable that the extremists of both the right and left are toying with the idea of capturing political power by force after their failure to capture it in a legitimate parliamentary way but any such attempts have no chance to get beyond the stage of local riots.

The vast majority of the German people are [illegible] to permit political adventurers to destroy the [illegible] situation and [illegible] system. [illegible] ers but the [illegible] to second Kapp putsch.

In these words Dr. Robert Weismann, who as [illegible] of the Prussian cabinet [illegible] der of the [illegible] order, is one of the best informed men on internal political conditions summarized the possible consequences of a battle over the Dawes reparations report.

While Germany [illegible] has been vague talk of impending uprisings [illegible] rumpings of the mobilization of contending forces. These sounded a [illegible] note to the [illegible] foreigner in Berlin.

POLICE ARE LOYAL.

The same views have been expressed by responsible officials [illegible] There are two reasons why Dr. Weismann and other officials believe the country to be absolutely safe. First, the Reichswehr or army police who passed the [illegible] last November are absolutely loyal and fully strong enough to crush any attempt to overthrow the government. General Von Seeckt, commanding the Reichswehr, especially is considered a rock upon which the republic can safely rest. [illegible] Reichswehr is generally admitted to be honored [illegible]

Second, an overwhelming majority of Germany's big business [illegible] with [illegible] putsch which might give [illegible] Without the support of big business [illegible]

Government officials, however, [illegible] the [illegible] largely through the [illegible] who wish to maintain [illegible] and order. They [illegible] that [illegible] the "human gesture" [illegible] Herriot.

Modification of the [illegible] terms of the [illegible] note would contribute moral [illegible] to the government [illegible] to justify its stand towards [illegible] report and at the same time take the wind out of the sails of the opposition. As a result, the government is putting off its [illegible] to the policy of the new [illegible] French government [illegible] to show its effects on Germany.

Rumors of possible uprisings are based largely on the [illegible] the Dawes report the Monarchists and the Nationalists find common ground with the [illegible] who are for [illegible] opposition and against the present government.

POSNER'S ARMY TAKES NANTASKET CAPTIVE

It was a great day at Shore Gardens for Posner's store staff. It was the annual outing and no one missed the all-day celebration. Employes and guests left the School street store at 9 A. M., arriving at the beach after an auto tour. A program of sports followed the feature of the day, the baseball games. But let it be known that the School street store "Babe Ruths" pinned defeat on the Washington street "All Star" team by a close and thrilling score.

Explorers to Be Buried on Mt. Everest

London, June 21

THE bodies of George Leigh Mallory and A. C. Ervine, British explorers, who lost their lives trying to scale Mt. Everest, the world's highest mountain peak, will be buried upon the slope of that famous Himalayan crag, if they are recovered.

The explorers were in sight of victory when overwhelmed by the forces of nature.

Mt. Everest has never been scaled.

'WILD BILL' GOES TO M'ADOO'S AID

By GEORGE E. DURNO
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

New York, June 21.—Meet former State Senator William [illegible] "Wild Bill" [illegible] of Colorado.

He's guaranteed to be the most picturesque character at the Democratic National convention.

Bill's chief claim to national attention is that he is the self-admitted discoverer of William Gibbs McAdoo, and of Jack Dempsey, world heavyweight champion.

He is in New York in the interests of his first discovery, McAdoo.

Senator Bill opined today that McAdoo would be nominated and elected "by the greatest majority ever accorded a candidate in history." Further, he is running this year for another term in Colorado's State senate as a McAdoo man and he himself is going to win with a vote "greater than that of all opponents combined." He said so himself.

Lyons breezed into McAdoo headquarters [illegible] true political style. Even his costume was [illegible] of [illegible] compromise. He wore [illegible] tan golf shoes, crimson [illegible] and pepper suit, a [illegible] breasted vest, and an army [illegible] with a [illegible] nativity in Colorado.

[illegible] asked. [illegible] I was a boy. When [illegible] necessary to stuff ballot boxes, I knew how to stuff 'em. When it was necessary to take [illegible] to keep [illegible] the ballot boxes for [illegible] I knew how to pick [illegible] states [illegible] over night. I've [illegible] contempt of [illegible] Alva [illegible]

This [illegible] real politician of the great open spaces [illegible] two watches. One [illegible] affair presented to him [illegible] Christmas time [illegible] by Jack Dempsey. On its dial [illegible] of Dempsey, Jack Kearns and Wild Bill.

The other watch was a present from [illegible] Welsh, former lightweight champion of the world [illegible] boxing law in Colorado. This timepiece bears pictures of Welsh and the Senator.

MOTHER'S LOVE WINS FOR GIRL

Immigration Officers Allow Daughter From Azores to Come to Plymouth

Plymouth, June 21.—Mother love has once more cut the red tape of immigration officers and reunited a family. Today Mary Madeiros, a Portuguese-American mother, who wants her daughters to be educated in American schools, and be Americans, left for New York to bring her fifteen-year-old daughter home.

The daughter, Maria, from the Azores, demanded entrance to the United States asserting she was born in Plymouth.

Investigation revealed that the girl was born here sixteen years ago. She left with her parents, at the age of two for the Azores. Her father died there and the mother returned to America four years ago, secured naturalization papers and sent for her daughter.

The Portuguese girl was exhausted when Maria arrived and she was held at Ellis Island while telegrams and letters were sent to prove her a native born American. Finally the mother, with the help of the Portuguese consul at Fall River, succeeded in her efforts.

SHIP BREAKDOWN TREATED AS LARK

Dorothy Bradford Limps Into Port 8 Hours Late, 200 Aboard

While scores of anxious parents and friends fretted on the Northern avenue dock for eight long hours, waiting the arrival of the Dorothy Bradford of the Cape Cod Steamship Company, disabled off Minot's Light with engine trouble, the some 200 passengers treated the experience as a lark.

Although eight hours overdue the passengers, including the graduating class of the Belmont High School and the Carter Grammar School of Needham, made merry on the boat and did not mind the delay in the least.

The steamer started on its daily 100 mile run to Provincetown under perfect conditions, but failure of the lubrication system compelled Captain Thatcher to order the boat hove to off Minot's Light on the return trip.

A radio message to the Boston office brought a tug to her assistance and the final lap was completed with ease.

Malden Club Has No Chance for First Half Honors Now

By PETER F. KELLEY.

Twilight League followers will be interested to know that the schedule for the first half of the season will be extended for a week, until July 11, because of the many postponements caused by rain early in the season. By that time the race for the first half will be decided and then the second half should be fight from the drop of the hat until the finish.

President Claude Davidson and the other officers of the organization want to do everything that's right. Many of the games were postponed because of rain but many others ended in ties and necessitated play offs.

Kelly Supreme As Circuit Clouter

New York, June 21.—Although two players, R. L. Lowe and Ed Delehanty, have hit four home runs in one game, no other batter in the history of baseball has twice smashed out three homers in one contest—the record that George Kelly of the Giants established at the Polo Grounds. Kelly clouted three in Chicago on Sept. 17 of last year.

Following are the National League hitters who have hit three homers in one game:

Players and Club	Year
Ed Williamson, Chicago	1884
A. C. Anson, Chicago	1884
John Manning, Phila	1884
Dan Brouthers, Detroit	1883
Roger Connor, New York	1888
W. F. Shugart, St. Louis	1894
William Joyce, Washington	1894
T. I. McCreery, Louisville	1897

THEY PACK MERRITT PARK.

Merritt Park, where the Chelsea club's home games are played, is packed at every home game. Berry and Strecket, the pitchers, discards from the Saints, are strong flingers and Haley, the Mercersburg Academy player who will go to Brown in the Fall, has proved a pillar of [illegible] for the club.

That [illegible] in Somerville and is a better place for the crowds that will gather and [illegible] for the games.

Malden doesn't seem to have much of a chance for the honors, but is better than last year. Jim Flanagan is the mogul at Malden. Connie [illegible] and captain, Tony Walsh and Howard Queen are stars of the Malden aggregation.

JACK LEARY LEADS THEM.

Jack Leary has the Everett [illegible] in the fight. The Everett team is better than last year. Shanahan, the second baseman, has proved a strong player.

BAY STATE HAS TWELVE ON THE OLYMPIC TEAM

By JOHN CLAUSEN.

Local track athletes feel like soldiers who have been under fire for the first time, but they are not repeating that sentence made famous by Commodore Perry: "We have met the enemy and they are ours."

Instead they are rubbing their eyes and wondering how it all happened. The failure of Flahive in the high jump at the tryouts and the unsuccessful attempts by Cavanaugh, Sullivan, Driscoll, Dalrymple, Marsters, Borah and several others in their special events have caused [illegible]

However, they are not alone. Surprises occurred all along the firing line and after counting the missing and the wounded we find that Massachusetts has twelve representatives [illegible] of the team scattered through ten other States.

French Lick, Ind., June 21.—Cyril Walker, professional at the Englewood (N. J.) Country Club, winner of the national open golf championship, will participate in the professional golfers' tournament here Sept. 14 to 21, it was announced today. Thomas D. Taggart has offered a $5,000 purse for the competition.

MAD HATTER IS WINNER OF RACE

New York, June 21.—Mad Hatter won the Queens County handicap today at the Aqueduct course, beating Rialto and Dunlin and four other horses.

Zev, who was scheduled to take part, did not start. He was booked to carry top weight, which probably accounts for his withdrawal.

The eight year old Mad Hatter was in great form and showed his heels to the others that composed the field. He went so fast that Prince of Umbria, Bracadale, Enchantment and Brainstorm, all fast horses, were in the also ran class.

The distance was one mile and Mad Hatter carried 127 pounds, which by the way was top weight [illegible]

Mad Hatter was backed at 7 to 2 [illegible] while Rialto, the second horse, was 12 to 5 to [illegible] first. Admirers of Dunlin wagered 6 to 1 he would win.

FLOYD JOHNSON CLASHES HERE IN BOUT WITH JACK SHARKEY

BIG FELLOWS START RING AFFAIRS MONDAY NIGHT

Bout Will Be Decided at the Suffolk A. C. Chapman and Finnegan Fight Friday. Two Other Shows.

By S. J. MAHONEY.

Another boxing carnival is in the offering for the fans of Greater Boston. Tomorrow night the Suffolk A. C. presents the first number on the program, and Floyd Johnson of Des Moines, Iowa, and Jack Sharkey of Roxbury will be the principals.

The battle between the big fellows will be staged in Mechanics Hall and, judging from the interest the match has absorbed, there will be a tremendous crowd at the well known rendezvous when the boys are called together to poise for the Advertiser camera man.

The general feeling is that the contest will be fast at all stages and that the work of deciding the battle will be entirely up to the referee who will do it by the point system.

Fans say that Sharkey and Johnson hit too hard to engage in anything like a [illegible]. Each has repeatedly demonstrated his hitting qualifications, and this is why so many are predicting that the contest will not go the limit.

Johnson appeared here in a mill with Thompson. That was short and snappy. The terrific short jolts that Johnson scored in close decided that battle in the initial round. Floyd is meeting in Sharkey a boxer who has had a wonderful lot of experience.

SHARKEY SLUGGING BOXER.

In the navy, Sharkey met some strong fellows, disposed of most of them and then came ashore to gain more laurels.

Since he has been performing at local clubs he has convinced the fans that he is well able to take care of himself [illegible]. His hard hitting has [illegible] of every contest in which he engaged.

His manager, Johnny Buckley, has a fine program for Sharkey [illegible]

Pat Maley [illegible] a fine entry for the various classes and he adds that one of the largest crowds that ever saw a show [illegible] will be present next Friday night.

A large number of [illegible] and 147 pounders will take part [illegible] for the names received thus far [illegible] that they all are interested.

The novices too are exciting considerable interest in the competition in which they are listed to take part.

On Thursday night there will be an open-air show at Fort Banks, Winthrop, where soldier boys and navy stars mix things.

WILLS-DEMPSEY DOUBTFUL.

While there never was anything certain about a combat between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills, a match now is but a remote possibility. [illegible]

DUNDEE SETBACK AGAIN

Johnny Dundee is [illegible]. Of course he has been in the game a long time [illegible]

His last setback was at the hands of Jack Sullivan of Brooklyn. The latter is hardly known outside of that district. His most important [illegible] have been with Pepper Martin and everyone knows that Dundee never had much trouble outpointing the popular [illegible].

As a result of losing to Sullivan last Friday night Dundee lost his junior lightweight title which he [illegible] anyway.

SOME FOLKS DREAMING

Benny Leonard and Mickey Walker [illegible] match. Benny is a lightweight and Mickey is a welterweight. As Benny is said to be no longer a lightweight and will have to quit his own class in a short time, [illegible] that he should wait to meet the leader of the class, but Benny meeting Dave Shade who [illegible] regarded by most folks as a joke.

Any boxing commission that would consider this part, in view of the difference in weight, undoubtedly would be ready to resign just as soon as the bout was sanctioned.

Pepper Martin Is Singing Now

Vincent "Pepper" Martin, popular Brooklyn junior lightweight, is now engaged at a new livelihood, at which he has become quite a success.

With the aid of Bob West with whom he has teamed, Martin is now one of Broadway's aspiring songsters.

Having just written "Take Me Back to Broadway," which has made a big hit in the city, Martin will attempt a few more in the near future.

Jake and "Cav" Have Chances

Unless Commissioner David Burke hustles and gets Jake Driscoll and Tom Cavanaugh and some of the other athletes of Irish ancestry, the American team at the Tailteann games next August will not be numerous.

So far as names go not more than ten or eleven of the American Olympic team are of Irish ancestry. Although one cannot bank on a man's name, yet no doubt it is self-evident.

Unless some of the athletes had mothers of Irish ancestry there is doubt that the American team at the big Irish games will be strong.

Some of the names that suggest Irish ancestry are Hussey, Norton, Connolly, Kirby, Larivee, Henigan, Devaney, Reilly, McGrath, McEachern and Dowling.

GIANTS DEFEAT BRAVES AGAIN IN THRILLING BOX DUEL

MCQUILLAN TRIUMPHS OVER JESS BARNES, 2-0

Frank Gibson, Pinch-Hitter, Snuffed Out Trying to Stretch Double Into Triple for Tribal Last Scoring Chance.

By EDDIE HURLEY

Mighty Casey Stengel's joints creaked and his warped legs splutt ered under the strain but all in vain. For the picturesque Casey, who was transported to Boston after making two homers for the Giants in last year's world's series exerted every ounce of energy in vain and in spite of his superman efforts in the ninth, the Braves for the third time in a row were turned back by the Giants. This time by the score of 2-1 in a game that anybody would out down as a baseball dream.

STASIAK HAS FINE CHANCE TO WIN LEWIS' CROWN

Stanley Stasiak, mighty son of Poland, is doing strenuous training for his finish mat bout with Strangler Lewis which will be staged at the Boston Arena on July 1. It will be best two falls out of three with the world's title at stake.

Lewis will come to Boston several days before the match and will complete his training in this city.

[illegible]

LEWIS SLOWING UP

[illegible] to the fore [illegible] the Strangler is going [illegible] rugged fellow and Stasiak appears to possess the necessary qualifications to win over the champion.

Stasiak has been his custom [illegible] a great deal of boxing as part of his training. He believes that this work makes him fast and better fitted to step in and defeat a champion like Lewis.

Lewis recently defeated Jimmy Londos, the Greek wrestler, in impressive style in St. Louis and is of the opinion he will also down Stasiak in their battle at the Arena.

GREAT INTEREST IN BOUT

There is tremendous interest in this contest. There will be fans at the match from all parts of New England. The last Lewis-Stasiak [illegible] was the most thrilling mat contest [illegible] Boston [illegible] bitter tussle is looked for.

FREDDIE MAGUIRE SWATTING BALL

Remember Freddy Maguire, the brilliant Holy Cross graduate who was with the Giants in 1922 and 1923? He used to do Frank Snyder's pitch tanning in the same manner as Freddy Lindstrom now looks after Pancho's road work.

Maguire was a beautiful fielder but looked weak with the mace. A lot of smart baseball men told me he never would make a hitter. They wagged their heads and said: "What a shame he can't bat!"

McGraw also was a little bothered over Maguire's batting and wanted to find out just what kind of hitter Freddy was. He had him on the bench nearly two seasons and felt that the only way Maguire could acquire the hitting strength was to play every day. So he sent the collegian out to Joe O'Brien's Toledo [illegible].

Recently McGraw ran into O'Brien and asked him whether Maguire was doing any hitting for him.

"Is Freddy hitting for me?" said Joe. "I should say he is. Why, he's the best hitter on my club. Have you looked at the American Association batting average lately?"

TY COBB BREAKS RECORDS GALORE

Ty Cobb is smashing major league records this year every time his name appears in a box score.

During nineteen years Cobb has played more games than any other American league player. The figures stood at 2449 when the season opened, and each appearance this year establishes a new high record.

Cobb also sets a new record this season every time he has a turn at bat, every time he singles, every time he triples, every time he hits safely and every time he scores.

STRAND IS RADIO ENTHUSIAST, TOO

Paul Strand, centre fielder of the Philadelphia Athletics, was a radio operator [illegible] class in the United States Navy during the war. He was the leading hitter of the Pacific Coast League last season. Playing with Salt Lake City, Strand made the most home runs and batted in the most runs. He made a world's record for hits.

DOC CAPLES TO RETURN TO BROWN

Cambridge Trainer Signs as Conditioner for Providence College Freshman Team

John P. (Doc) Caples of Cambridge has signed to train the Brown freshmen athletes next Fall. Doc made the agreement with Dr. Fred W. Marvel, director of athletics at the Providence University. He will train the cross-country men also and during the Winter will keep the track men in condition.

Thus Caples will return to Brown, for he was trainer for various teams at that college during the term year just closed.

Doc is well known in athletic circles. He was a trainer at Harvard for eleven years. When Bob Fowler was an active Marathon runner Caples was his trainer. He trained Joe Fogler, Fred Hill and Pat Logan, well known [illegible] riders.

In his early days Caples trained the teams at Lowell Textile and Powder Point School, Duxbury. He had offers from four colleges and two major prep schools but decided to return to Brown, where he is very popular with the students and athletes and where he did good work as conditioner.

"BIG LINE" RACE HORSES SOON WILL HEAR STARTER'S "GO"

FIRST SERIES OF TROTS AND PACES ON JUNE 30

North Randall, O., Will Be the Scene of Initial Meet of the Well Known Grand Circuit.

By S. J. MAHONEY.

One week from next Monday the "big line" trotters and pacers will make their debut at North Randall, O., where four important races will be staged. The inaugural series will be worth $8,600 to the owners of the horses that finish well up in each event.

Speed and plenty of it will be seen at the opening in the Ohio town. All the events are three heat races, two of which will be trots and the other pair paces.

"The Edwards" is the feature of the afternoon. There is a $5,000 stake for the 2:08 pacers that will be sent away in this annual race. The stakes for the other races will each have a value of $1,200.

The following afternoon "The Ohio" will serve to lure a large crowd to the track. This event is for 2:08 trotters, and the entry is a large one.

As on the opening day the racing will be split for trotters and pacers, but the third day there will be three trots and only one pace. The big event Wednesday will be the trotting sweepstakes with $1,500 added money.

This race is for horses eligible to the 2:03 class.

SWEEPSTAKES AND TAVERN.

Four races are on the list for the campaign on Thursday, July 3. The three-year-old pace, sweepstakes, is the event of the day, but "The Tavern Stake" is also attracting its share of attention.

This has been a fixture for some time and, as it is worth $5,000, some of the best 2:12 trotters will take the word.

There is a Free-for-All Pace on the final day, and this will help to keep the fireworks burning. Sir Roch, Margaret Dillon and Single G. should be seen in this important race. There is another pace and also two trots on the list.

In the event of rain on any of the days named, and the races should be postponed, an opportunity will be afforded the devotees of the sport to see their favorites the last day of the week.

Entries closed last Monday, and Manager Kinnan then had a fine slate laid out for the opening day.

A FINE PROGRAM.

A fine program of racing has been laid out by the horse magnates of the Maine and New Brunswick circuit. There will be racing "down east" from July 3 until it is almost time to get out the sleds.

The curtain will ascend at Houlton and Presque Isle. In the former town they will celebrate Independence Day with a race before the Fourth and another bunch on the Fourth.

The boys at Presque Isle will do likewise on the nation's holiday, and Secretary Hayes has made elaborate plans for the entertainment.

From there the horses will move to Caribou for a series from July 7-11. After that the drive will be in the direction of Woodstock, N. B., which is on the St. John river, and but a short distance from Houlton.

STOP AT FREDERICTON

The next stop is Fredericton, N. B., which is several miles southeast of Woodstock, and is on the St. John river also. Here everyone is impatient for the compaign to begin.

Recently Chesley H. Searcy, 2.07¼, was delivered there, and the $7500 purchase of the devotees of racing in that town now is all ready to go. He was put in condition in the west, and with a little tuning up he will be in trim for a battle in a short time with the Grattans, John R. Braden, Dan Hedgewood and anything else in the speed line that might be produced.

The Sliver Axworthy horse has an interesting history, most of which was printed in the Advertiser immediately following his purchase several months ago.

WILL BE TORRID SPOT

If the recent celebration on his arrival is a criterion, Fredericton will be as torrid a spot for racing this summer as Presque Isle, Houlton, Caribou and other towns on that circuit have been the past few years.

The other towns that will have a chance to see the great free-for-allers are Edmundston, N. B., Presque Isle, Ft. Fairfield, Caribou, Houlton and Woodstock.

Big purses will be in order and undoubtedly some excellent racing will be seen over the half - mile tracks on both sides of the St. John river.

RACING AT BRATTLEBORO, VT.

Racing men up north will turn their attention this week to the two-day meet at Brattleboro, Vt. Eight events are on the list and a fine entry has been received for each.

Some of the best trotters and wigglers in the mountain country will be in Brattleboro June 25-26. Approximately $3500 in money will be turned over to the owners of the horses that win and place in the coming series. National trotting rules will govern.

SPRINGFIELD ENTRIES CLOSE

Horsemen who contemplate sending their trotters and pacers after the money at Springfield should bear in mind that the curtain falls next Tuesday and if they haven't entered for the late closing races then their chance to do so will have slipped.

The classes are 2:09 pace for $500, three heats; 2:18 trot, three heats, for $[illegible], and a [illegible] pace, three heats, for $500.

If any of the horses eligible now do better next Tuesday, it will not be held against the animal. The entry will be accepted.

Horsemen go to Greenfield now for fast young trotters and pacers. Roger Rourke has been furnishing class for a large number of the lovers of the sport.

The opening at Readville was a wonderful success. The Bay State meeting was as well patronized Bunker Hill Day as if it were a Grand Circuit affair.

Lovers of horse racing in Massachusetts are indebted to Charles Leonard, Charles Traiser, Dave Mulcahey, Allan Wilson, Roger Rourke, George Leonard, Walter Newbert, W. J. McDonald, Fred Field, Fred Morrill, William Sprague and Clarence Prendergast for the fine racing they have been privileged to see the past few years.

Racing went over big recently at Trenton, N. J. Earl Pitman was much in evidence there with Intermediate Dillon.

Fred Hyde will campaign Ivo Loo and Margaret Spangler on the Grand Circuit this season. Last year these great pacers scored many victories about New England.

There will be some real sport at the Mets matinee June 28. George Graves will award a silver trophy to the winning three-year-old and George S. West will do likewise at the conclusion at the race for two-years-olds.

They have barred Margaret Dillon, Sir Roch and Single G. at Woodstock, N. B. The owners of good free-for-allers will not be afraid to enter now. They'll feel that they will have a chance for their money September 9 to 12.

The St. Johnsbury, Vt., track has just been resurfaced and it will be exceedingly fast this Summer, if the reports we have received are true.

With twenty nominations to each event at Lewiston, Me., for the early closing events, some fast racing is promised. More than 100 fast horses are training there at present.

Indications point to an overflow at Windsor, Ct., for the two $10,000 stake races. The Connecticut Valley cities and towns will be well represented.

Entry blanks for the Maine and New Brunswick series may be had by communicating with Arthur R. Fairbanks at Presque Isle, Me.

Entries for the three late closing events at Springfield, July 9 to 12, should be sent Manager Charles Nash, Springfield, Mass., on or before June 24.

Walker Will Be Beaten By Benny

Jimmy De Forrest, trainer of Jack Dempsey for his battle with Jesse Willard, recently commented on the sameness of Walker's boxing.

"If he knew how to change his style," said the noted trainer, "Walker would be one of the greatest of champions. He should have stopped Tendler in three rounds. But he only knows one method of fighting. Tendler solved this and avoided a knockout, aided by his fine physical condition.

"Walker has courage, and is a good hitter. He can take it, too. But he isn't in Benny Leonard's class as a smart fighter.

"As a matter of fact, if Leonard boxes Walker I would pick the lightweight champion to win. Benny is too smart, I believe, for Mickey."

WILL HELP SMART YOUNG BALL PLAYER

Exiling Roy Boyd to Fort Smith for infraction of rules at the Cardinals' training camp did the 21-year-old pitcher much good. When not winning games in the box, the youngster is playing the outfield and hitting the ball hard.

Causey, Semi-Pro

"Red" Causey, who once pitched for the Giants, is now a member of the Valley Stream, L. I., team. Bill Zimmerman, brother of "Heinie," is playing third base for the same team.

TO FIGHT MALONE

FORMER MIDDLEWEIGHT CHAMPION—This is Johnny Wilson, who expects to take on "Jock" Malone at one of the ball parks in Boston at an early date.

SAYS "BUGS" Baer: THE GLUTT WRITES SOON

Champion of Roughtown Breaks the Silence of Centuries With an Unpublished Letter, We Hope

Copyright, 1924, by Star Company.

ROUGHTOWN, April 22, 1924.—A dispatch printed in the Roughtown Daily Fever Chart states that Damon Runyon is taking three young fighters to England to age them.

The Roughtown champion of the last two centuries is The Glutt, and he loses no time in making himself illiterate. The Glutt has just published a two-column help wanted advertisement in the drowning edition.

If Runyon is going to take three American fighters over to meet Tex O'Rourke's three English canvasbaggers then The Glutt wants to go along as night watchman in a day nursery.

Here is the Glutt's egg lament of the frying gladiator. It was printed in the Fever Chart yesterday or some time in the near future. It is addressed to all the entire languages of the world and will not even accept a malaria cure from the Rockefeller Foundation.

Editor of the Roughtown Daily Fever Chart: Dear sir and to those whom it may disconcert:

Your letter must have been opened by mistake. It is no credit to them.

If you have six dozen of one kind I will take the other.

There was no umbrella on the handle. It would have been childish to steal it.

He said if you saw this in the paper that it was another triumph for old Yale. Runyon said that five times six should be in the vicinity of the early thirties. The Glutt does not claim to be the worst fighter in the world and demands a chance to prove it.

He will fight on the level. The last time he fought he was as level as the floor. If there is a wrinkle in the canvas he cannot sleep. He is nervous. Three fighters are going to England to uphold the glory of the majority of States and The Glutt's name is not whispered in a mention.

How long has this been going when a man can make a living on three deuces in a game where two small pair are poison? If Runyon takes three deuces to England he is leaving the cream of the deck back in Roughtown trying to make an honest living without working. The Glutt is the champion of the world and you can take the suburbs.

Maybe it was or was not. What difference does it make? I hope you have been reading this letter, as it would be embarrassing to have read this far without opening it. I am The Glutt and I demand to be taken along to England, as I can enjoy being seasick on a pleasure trip.

It looks like the needles. Here are three unknown fighters who haven't even been mentioned yet and are getting all this publicity, while The Glutt is biting his fingernails in Roughtown and can whip James J. Corbett without even working up a gooseflesh.

If the Prince of Wales cannot ride a horse, why don't they give a man's job to a rocking chair? Signed without mercy, THE GLUTT.

PREDICT RHINEHARDT IS MAJOR TIMBER

George Rhinehardt, who in his first year of professional ball last season tied with Manager Beck for Sally League batting honors, with an average of .370, bids fair to flash as a major league star. He is gifted with all the natural requirements—physique, speed and strength and is imbued with the fighting and winning spirit.

Many Riders Booked

Cumberland, Md., June 21.—Some of the leading motorcyclists in this State have signified their intention of competing in the Allied Motorcycle hill climb here Aug. 24.

Cycling War About Done

It is reported that the French-Belgian-German cycling tangle soon will be straightened out in a satisfactory manner.

PURPLE LOSES TEN ATHLETES

Worcester, June 21.—Last Wednesday the Holy Cross athletic roster lost ten sterling varsity athletes who receive their degrees. The baseball squad will lose five letter men in Captain Simondinger, Riopel, Tunney, Burke and Ryan. Simondinger is also a letter man in football. He has played center field for the last four years and has been one of the most consistent players of the team.

Tunney, the star twirler of 1922 has been one of the mainstays of the pitching staff since entering college. His achievements in defeating Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Penn in his first year of college baseball put his name in a high niche in Holy Cross baseball history. Burke has been a varsity pitcher for the last two years and has turned in some good victories. Ryan has been first string catcher the past two seasons.

In Riopel Holy Cross loses one of the greatest athletes in recent years. Riopel has been a three-letter man the last two years, playing football, baseball and basketball. He has held down left field the past four years in baseball. In basketball he was a star guard for two years and in football played four years in the back field, being captain last Fall. It is reported that Riopel will join the Giants immediately after graduation.

In football the Purple will miss the services of Dohig, an end; Simondinger in the back field and Riopel. In track Captain Dohig and Miller will be lost. In baseball Captain quintet, will go. The tennis team will lose two sure point winners in Captain Doern and Ward, both having played for the past three seasons on the varsity net team.

YANKEES OFFERED $15,000 FOR THOMAS

Terre Haute, Ind., June 21.—President Cleary of the Terre Haute team has purchased Pitcher Ropiequet, a southpaw, from the Indianapolis club of the American Association. Ropiquet is a former Wabash University star.

Another pitcher purchased by Terre Haute is C. Thomas, from New Orleans of the Southern League. In the Spring of 1923, while the New York Yankees were training at New Orleans, they made an offer of $15,000 for Thomas, but the offer was turned down.

PENN UNCOVERS NEW COLLEGE TWIRLER

Zip Long Proved One of the Pitching Sensations of College Season by His Brilliant Work for Coach Walter Cariss

PHILADESLPHIA, June 21.—Walter Carles, Pennsylvania baseball coach, believes that he has another Walter Huntzinger in Zip Long, the sophomore pitcher who made such a wonderful record for the Red and Blue this season. Although Hank Rohrer was looked upon as the star hurler at the start of the season, especially after he won three out of the first four games on the schedule, the southpaw went a trifle bad and the pitching burden fell on Long, who was a star of the freshman team a year ago.

Long established a strike-out reputation while a member of the Episcopal Academy nine before entering the university. He started his varsity career as a winner against Lehigh. He has continued right down the line with a consecutive record of eight victories, including two conquests each of Yale and Columbia.

His winning log follows:

April 16	Lehigh	6—2
April 26	Yale	12—8
May 3	Yale	8—5
May 10	Williams	8—2
May 17	Brown	6—3
May 30	Columbia	6—3
June 4	Columbia	7—3
June 7	Colgate	3—2

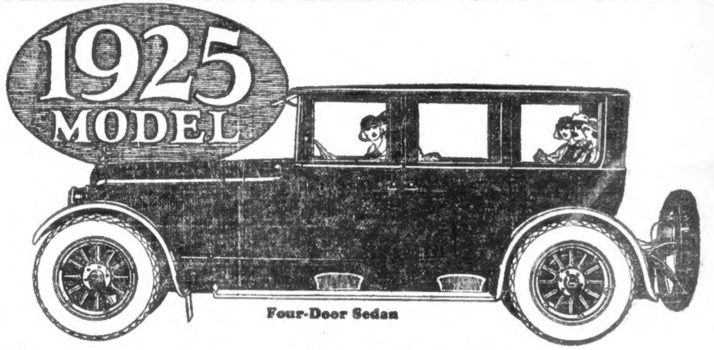
Long has worked in other games, but was not credited any victories or charged defeats. He started the Navy game on Franklin Field, which was called at the end of the seventh inning with the score tied 2 to 2. Zip is a right-hander with a good change of pace and has been striking out six or eight men in almost every game.

Dr. Cariss looks upon Long as his hurling ace for next year. Rohrer will be graduated. Jack Williams, the 200-pound right-hander, who also was at Episcopal Academy before coming to Penn, will be available next year. Wildness was his principal fault last season and early this year, but the big fellow seems to be getting better control all the time. He has as much stuff as any man on the squad, but simply lacks confidence.

Penn's final game of the season will be played here on Wednesday with Cornell. This is commencement day at the university and special arrangements have been made to handle a record crowd. Long probably will pitch against the Ithacans.

Penn will launch something new in college football preparedness this summer. Lud Wray, head line coach, assistant last year to Harold Gaston, will maintain a football correspondence school. While the athletes are busy during the summer months running trolley cars, working on railroad trains, employed as clerks or in any other positions, Wray will keep in close touch with all of them.

Lou Little, the former Pennsylvania tackle, who will be head coach at Georgetown this year, announced that he will institute the same system with his Hilltoppers. Little will bring his team to Franklin Field next fall. A keen fight is promised, as Little and Wray played on the same team at the university.



Four-Door Sedan

You Get in This New Car Every Up-to-Date Feature

1925 Features
Traffic Transmission
Pikes Peak Motor
4-Wheel Brakes
Balloon Tires
Standard Equipment

When you buy a car today, you have a right to ask for—
—the powerful performance of a master motor;
—the certain action of a clash-proof transmission;
—the cushioned comfort of balloon tires;
—the added safety of four-wheel brakes;
—and the assurance of a 100 per cent rear axle.

To buy a car that offers less is to choose a car no longer modern.

In the 1925 Chandler, you have the absolute freedom from gear-shifting evils provided only by the Traffic Transmission.

You have the matchless performance capacity of the Pikes Peak Motor—the pillowy comfort of genuine super-size balloon tires (standard equipment)—and the extra security of front wheel brakes which Chandler offers optionally at a moderate extra charge.

See the 1925 Chandler! Drive it through an exhaustive test! No other car so splendidly combines all that progressive design has developed with all that sound engineering and public use have proved!

(The Traffic Transmission is built complete in the Chandler plant under Campbell patents)

NEW HAMPSHIRE LAKES CLOSE TO BOSTON

Enjoy Scenery of These Beautiful Lakes but Fifty Miles from Boston. Enjoyable Day's Outing for Today.

New England lakes are endowed with all the attributes that go with the ideal resting and pleasure place. There are scores of beautiful lakes in different parts of New England, but the tour to the two lakes—Canobie and Massabesic in southern New Hampshire—enables one to enjoy all the charm of New England lake scenery, bathing, boating, motorboating, canoeing and fishing.

The most enjoyable motor trips now are those that are somewhat off the beaten paths and the motor trip to the southern New Hampshire lakes is almost entirely over roads that do not carry exceptionally heavy traffic. This trip which covers slightly more than 100 miles embraces points of interest to every member of the family, from father right down to the kiddies. This trip makes a perfect one day outing with innumerable shady lakeside spots for picnicing and basket lunching. At Canobie Lake there are merry-go-rounds, flying horses, aeroplane swings and whirling boats, to make the little folks happy and there are some amusement devices at Massabesic Lake. Swimming is excellent in the clear fresh water at Canobie while at Massabesic excellent motorboating, canoeing and rowing may be had. Excellent perch and pickerel fishing may be had at Massabesic. The start was made from the Boston Advertiser's International Bureau, Boston headquarters of the motor tours, and proceeded through Copley Square and Commonwealth avenue, to Harvard Bridge through Massachusetts avenue, to the Alewife Brook parkway. Through Winchester and Woburn into Wilmington, Tewksbury and Lowell. From Lowell the route leads along the right hand shore of the Merrimac River over the Tyngsboro Bridge through Nashua, Merrimac and into Manchester. There is a one mile detour at Tyngsboro. Massabesic Lake is on the eastern outstretch of Manchester and is the summer resort for this city. It has a circumference of 36 miles, showing that it is no small body of water. At the Manchester end of the lake is a colony of summer cottagers while at the further end of the beautiful body of water is Auburn, with half a dozen summer hotels and boarding houses. From Massabesic the route to Canobie is through Derry by the shores of Canobie Lake. The afternoon may be spent at Canobie leaving around 6 o'clock to make Boston at 9.

Between Derry and Salem there are several short stretches of road under construction but they are in such condition that no difficulty will be experienced in getting through. There is one bad stretch of road between Lawrence and Salem for about one half a mile. This is really the only bad stretch of road in the whole tour. Returning through Lawrence one passes over the Merrimac River just below the dam that supplies the water power of Lawrence's great woolen industry. Returning through Shawsheen village and Andover built by William M. Wood for the employees of his mills. Next we pass through Andover, Reading, Stoneham, through the Fellsway, back into Cambridge, and Boston. One would be exacting indeed if a thoroughly pleasant day couldn't be spent at either of these lakes.

OAKLAND MOTORS HIGHLY EFFICIENT

"The remarkable records established in the recent Indianapolis speedway race are in reality a triumph for the high speed motor of small piston displacement," explains Benjamin Jerome, chief engineer of the Oakland Motor Car Company.

"Racing car motors have constantly been reduced in size and at the same time have had speed and endurance increased. Oakland has always advocated the small bore, long stroke motor and until very recently we have had the smallest cubic displacement six cylinder motor used in standard construction.

"Smaller motors mean smaller and lighter reciprocating parts, and these in turn mean reduced motor strains and bearing troubles and result in faster time. A stock model Oakland coupe still holds the speed record on the Pacific coast from Los Angeles to San Diego.

"Smaller motors, in addition, make for economy. Oakland has demonstrated this economical feature in winning so many of the great annual economy runs on the Pacific coast. With high speed, light weight and perfect lubrication you likewise obtain smooth operation."

"Business Good," Says Well Known Motor Merchant

"At the close of business last Saturday night," said C. P. Rockwell, distributor of Nash cars, at 640 Commonwealth avenue, yesterday, "we had delivered more cars this year than in the corresponding period of last year.

"We sold more used cars last week than we had sold in any previous week.

"There is business to be had. It may be a little harder to get, but we are getting it.

"Our business is good!"

SAFETY BIG FACTOR IN HUPP DESIGN

Officials of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation believe that no car on the market, at any price, provides in all its vital parts for a greater margin of strength in proportion to known strain than the Hupmobile.

"Such provision is one of the simple secrets of safety in driving, in durability of parts and long life of a motor car itself," declares Charles E. Jeffrey, local Hupmobile dealer.

"The Hupp company and the others that regard safety a sone of the first fundamentals of automobile construction would rather stop building cars tomorrow than to build one not known to be safe for every member of the family."

Whir and Hum of Auto Motors

MODERN MOTOR CAR HIGHLY REFINED PRODUCT

Offers More to Public in Beauty and Service Than Ever Before in History of Industry

By ROY C. HAYES,
Universal Service Automobile Editor.

Detroit, June 21.—Day by day in every way automobiles are getting better and better.

You need be a disciple of Emil Coue to appreciate the truth in this paraphrase of his well-advertised slogan. The patent fact is evident as soon as you ride or drive any of the late models. In chassis, motor and body-design, the present handiwork of motor car manufacturers embodies undreamt of beauty and service. Improvements and advances have been built in from day to day.

Little does the average motorist know of the constant refinement being made in the automobile. Every day some advance or other is made. Remarkable in the light of this progress and this service to the motor car buyer and user, is the few price advances made in the industry. On the other hand, I believe records will show that more reductions than increases have been made.

Steadily mounting production, running into tremendous volume, has made this possible. As production climbed, manufacturers were able to shave dollar by dollar the consumer's price.

Today, the productive capacities of motor car factories have reached an enormous size, overshadowing even the great demand for the automobile. Lessened production which has resulted in greater cost per car to the manufacturer, the improvements being constantly built in and several other factors have made it necessary for many manufacturers to make small price advances.

Prices are going up and will continue the trend for several months. Practically all cars will show advances in price. Perhaps the most potent factor in making increases necessary is the widespread adoption of balloon tires and four-wheel brakes. Manufacturers, and the motoring public as well, seem sold on the two principles. There is little doubt but that four-wheel brakes and balloon tires will eventually be standard equipment in every well-established automobile.

Every now and then someone tries to compete with Henry Ford in making low-priced automobiles. The company of the hour is the Schuler Motor Car Company of Slinger, Wisconsin. This company, capitalized at $1,000,000, has developed a lightweight roadster at $295 and a coupe at $496. Plans are being made to start production the first of the month. H. E. Schuler of Milwaukee, is the inventor and designer of the Schuler car which was shown at the Wisconsin automobile show in 1923. The car will be fully equipped and will have an electric starter and lights. It is powered with a 19-horsepower twin-type, water cooled, valve-in-head motor, with a three-speed transmission.

SLOW HILL CLIMB REAL MOTOR TEST

Chandler Gives Unusual Demonstrations of Power and Flexibility

Climbing steep hills in high gear at twenty miles per hour or above has long been popularly regarded as the supreme test of an automobile's pulling power. Popular as this test may be, it is nevertheless not the really conclusive test of a motor's power.

If you want to test your motor's ability on your favorite hill against cars of other makes, the thing to do is to find out which car can ascend the hill in the slowest time, rather than the fastest. This slow test demonstrates more than mere power, for it conclusively shows the flexibility of an engine.

Chandler dealers everywhere have found this slow hill test one of their best means of proving the qualities of the famous Pikes Peak Motor. At Los Angeles recently a Chandler touring car was driven in high up one of the city's famous grades, the First Street Hill, trailing immediately behind a man on foot, walking at a moderate pace. Similar demonstrations have been made on many other well-known grades, such as the Lewiston Hill, between Buffalo and Niagara Falls, and the famous Abbey Hill in New York City.

R. M. KINCAID GARFORD OFFICIAL

Russell M. Kincaid has been unanimously elected vice-president of the Garford Motor Truck Company, Lima, Ohio, by the Board of Directors recently convened.

Mr. Kincaid's connection with Garford in the capacity of Assistant to the President dates only from March 1st, but the results of his work since that time warrant the election, John L. Galvin, Chairman of the Board announces.

Kincaid was formerly Works Manager of The U. S. Light & Heat Corp., at Niagara Falls and enjoys a continuous producing record.

Emmet R. Custin, prominent Ohio financier is president of the Garford Company.

BIG BUSINESS IS PREDICTED

F. A. Ordway Declares Warm Weather Will Be Great Stimulus

"This warm weather means everything to business," says F. A. Ordway, vice president of the Henley-Kimball Company, local Hudson-Essex distributor.

"Since January 1, I have done business in an amazing volume, but warm weather will prove a wonderful further stimulus. Our own concern would be benefitted indirectly rather than directly, because with our great proportion of enclosed cars, Hudson and Essex sell just about as good one season as another.

"But we know that many of our logical customers—merchants, wholesalers and business men of all sort—have been under an unusual strain this spring because the weather has kept them from their usual fine trade. Give these men a week or ten days of fine weather, and you'll have the shelves empty, and an unprecedented rush of business. And, having money these business men will spend it, so that business will loosen up all along the line.

"Because we had a quiet Spring, we should all have good business right along into July and August. There is a great deal of accumulated buying to do."

BIG DRIVE ON TO COMBAT THEFTS

Thirteen States, the District of Columbia and two Canadian provinces have united in a drive to combat automobile thefts. The plan proposes employment of experts in the various States and provincial bureaus who will have charge of comprehensive files of stolen cars to be used in connection with issuance of car registrations.

Speeder Enters Classic

Rhymes of the Road

By DUDLEY GLASS.

BILL BEAVERS asked the wife and me to take a Sunday ride
In Bill's new car, in which he takes enthusiastic pride.
Said he, "The scenery is fine along the Hillside Pike;
I'll show you lots of lovely things your wife and you will like."

He tucked us in the seat behind and stepped upon the gas,
There was no car upon the road which William did not pass;
The breezes whistled past our heads—I lost my new straw hat—
But by the time I spoke we'd gone too far to stop for that.

We bounced about from side to side and hardly touched the seat;
We almost took a coat of paint off every car we'd meet;
We turned the curves upon two wheels, and when we hit a bump
My head went almost through the top, which raised a painful lump.

We sped among the verdant hills and climbed across the ridge;
We plowed through mud in three detours and thundered o'er a bridge.
"Was not the scenery great?" asked Bill, when we were home at last.
"I cannot say," quoth I. "Because it all went by too fast."

1924 WILL EXCEED 1923

Olds Cash Volume of Business to Date Greater Than All Last Year

Lansing, Mich., June 21.—The year 1923 was the greatest year the automobile industry ever experienced. National Automobile Chamber of Commerce figures, just released in the Annual Year Book, show a total of 3,694,237 passenger cars manufactured in 1923. The total registration on January 1, 1924, was 13,571,411 cars.

Predictions that 1924 business will not equal that of 1923 seems to be refuted when considering total cash sales volume and retail sales figures just made public by the Olds Motor Works of Lansing, Mich., one of the big divisions of the General Motors Corporation.

The greatest cash volume of business in the history of the Olds Motor Works was transacted during the first five months of 1924, company officials announce. This is doubly outstanding inasmuch as this year the Olds Motor Works is selling the lowest priced car it has produced in its entire twenty-seven years of manufacturing experience, with the exception of the famous little curved-dash "Merry Oldsmobile" of 1900. In fact the present Oldsmobile is the lowest priced six-cylinder automobile in the world.

The total volume of sales in dollars and cents was 80 per cent. greater for the first five months of 1924 than it was during the same period last year. The cash business so far this year even exceeds the previous banner year of 1920 by a substantial margin.

Pessimist's Column

The wave of confidence in the immediate future of business, which for some time seemed to be receding, has now turned. Indications of a renewal of faith and general optimism are evident on every side.

The atmosphere in railroad circles is showing a noticeably optimistic trend.

The enthusiasm with which people are buying automobiles today has not been equalled in recent years. The urge of perfect June weather and the sure knowledge that prices are going to be higher is causing an unusual number of people to take advantage of present prices and purchase their cars now.

The last holiday, June 17, was so typically a June day that everyone wished they had a car to round out completely their enjoyment and a day in the country. The latter part of the week has reflected this attitude in the tremendous number of purchases of used cars. The staple basis upon which the used car business now finds itself is a cause for ever increasing confidence. Thousands of miles of good economical transportation can be purchased for an extremely low price in a good used car. Misrepresentation no longer exists. Every reliable automobile concern on the street handling used cars is just as jealous of their reputation on used cars as they are on new cars, as satisfied used car buyers are the most prolific source of new prospects for next year's business. Values in used cars have never been equalled and the supply is not too plentiful in view of the fact, that the greatest number of used cars is always sold between June 1 and August 15.

TRUCKS HELP MAKE MOVIES

Graham Brothers' Product Excels in Filming of Ten Commandments

Truck history in heroic letters has been written upon the dreary sand dunes and desert wastes which border the shore of the Pacific some thirteen miles west of Santa Maria, Cal., by a fleet of Graham Brothers 1½-ton trucks. According to transportation officials of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, the Graham Brothers' 3,000-pound jobs, competing with trucks of the three to five-ton variety, overwhelmingly demonstrated power and endurance by out-hauling all other trucks on the job of constructing the huge Biblical sets which were erected by screen technicians.

A fleet of Graham Brothers trucks, together with many others of much larger capacity, were assigned the titanic task of hauling over a half million feet of lumber, cement, nails and other materials up the treacherous sandy grades to the crest. Although a road was graded by the film company, the heavier trucks failed to make the steep pull and the faithful Grahams finished the job.

BUSINESS COUPE IS OFFERED

New Overland Designed for Salesmen, Doctors and Small Families

Having in mind the particular requirements of the city and traveling salesman, the doctor, the small family and the woman in the home who wants a small car for her own personal use, Willys-Overland has announced the production of its new Business Coupe, on its popular Overland chassis.

"We believe that the new car is the last word in convenience, roominess and all-round driving comfort," is the comment of Fred H. Rees, local Willys-Overland dealer, on the factory's announcement.

"Its short wheel base simplifies the parking problem.

"Economy of operation results in a minimum upkeep cost."

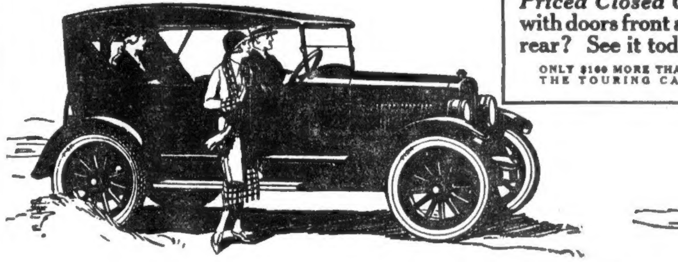
Still Under $500

No Raise in Price!

Sales Increase 177%

Do you know that Overland also builds the World's Lowest Priced Closed Car with doors front and rear? See it today!

ONLY $100 MORE THAN THE TOURING CAR



There was a time when you could choose between five cars priced under $500—but three of the five have raised prices.

Overland is the world's lowest priced touring car with sliding gear transmission—with an all-steel body—with a standard speedometer.

Yet Overland's price remains the same—only $115 above the cheapest car built with demountable rims and starter.

No wonder Overland sales increased 177% last year—the greatest gain of any maker building over 100,000 cars!

Overland has made such a big name for itself in quality that many people think of it as a higher priced car than it is.

Overland gives you 23 big-car quality features that make it easily the most automobile in the world for the money.

It is the only car under $800 with an all-steel body.

The only car under $800 with a permanent finish of lustrous oven-baked enamel.

The only car in the world with patented springs that gently pull instead of push the wheels over bumps—a total springbase 30 inches longer than any car of equal length.

50% Heavier Rear Axle

Its rear axle shaft is Mo-lyb-den-um steel 1½ inches in diameter—nearly 50% heavier than that of any touring car under $700.

Timken and New Departure bearings are used exclusively in front and rear axles.

Its reliable brakes give 25% more braking surface in proportion to car weight, than any car under $700.

It has four doors and tight curtains that open with the doors.

It has a speedometer, fully adjustable windshield, foot accelerator, disc clutch—complete equipment.

Leader in Power

Overland has proved on America's hills to be the leader in power—and owners everywhere have proved it to be the lowest cost car to run and keep in condition.

Built by one of the three largest automobile manufacturers in the world, Overland's tremendous volume of production and sales alone make possible the maintenance of its amazing low price.

Last month Overland showed the largest May sales in its history. Popularity like this is the best guide to the greatest value.

Come in and examine Overland, point for point, detail for detail. Bring in your old car and we will help you buy a new Overland the easiest way.

HUB TO WAGE SUMMER WAR ON DIPHTHERIA

Drive Opens to Save Young Children's Lives Tomorrow; Forty Stations Are Ready

NEW TREATMENT SUCCESS

Doctors and Nurses Pressed Into Service; List of the Clinics, With Dates

A city-wide drive against diphtheria—childhood's most fatal disease—will begin tomorrow and continue until September 1 for all children under five years of age.

Stations will be opened tomorrow in forty public schools. Doctors of the Boston Health Department will administer the treatment.

Nurses will be on hand.

Parents are urged to bring their children under five years as soon as possible.

TREATMENT A SUCCESS.

The Boston Health Department and the Society of Friends of Medical Progress are co-operating in this campaign. To assure any parents who have heard the treatment is injurious, the health department gives these figures:

The Boston Health Department has given over 250,000 treatments in the past two years without one single bad result.

Five hundred thousand New York school children have been protected against diphtheria in the same period.

No child has been made ill by the treatment. The younger the children, the better and easier they take it.

Th stations in public school buildings will be open as follows: Comins, Dudley, Ellis Mendall and Farragut Schools, June 23, June 30 and July 7, at 10 a. m.

Lafayette, Lucretia Crocker, Nathan Hale and William Eustis Schools, June 24, July 1 and July 8.

Edmund P. Tileston, Stoughton, Trescott and Robert Swan Schools, June 25, July 2 and July 9.

William E. Russell, Phillips Brooks, Francis Parkman and John D. Philbrick Schools, June 26, July 3 and July 10.

Sarah Greenwood, Damon, Fairmount and Henry Grew schools, June 27, July 11 and August 4.

ABSENTEES IN AUGUST.

Andrews, Michelangelo, Hancock and Bowdoin schools, July 14, July 21 and July 28.

Washington, Wendell Phillips, William Blackstone and Peter Faneuil schools, July 15, July 22 and July 29.

John J. Williams, Frothingham, Walt and Prescott schools, July 16, July 23 and July 30.

Blackington, Emerson, Samuel Adams and Theodore Lyman schools, July 17, July 24 and July 31.

Daniel Webster, Philip Sheridan, Choate Burnham and Cyrus Alger schools, July 18, July 25 and August 1.

Absentees will be treated beginning August 5.

11 HELD IN DRY RAID NEAR SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, June 21.—Eleven persons, the largest number with few exceptions, ever rounded up at one time in western Massachusetts on moonshining charges, were arraigned today following raids conducted by local and state police yesterday in the neighboring town of Agawam. All of the 11, some of whom were women with children, were held for hearings on pleas of not guilty.

The raids were undertaken on orders of the selectmen to clean up the town and were directed by State Dectective Manning. All those arrested are charged with selling liquor or keeping with intent to sell.

Russell Scott, Once Canadian Millionaire, Pleads Guilty to Murder in Chicago Holdup

Montreal, June 21.—Canada's most famous millionaire for a day stands in the shadow of an Illinois gallows.

Russell T. Scott, whose dazzling career as a wealthy stock promoter was nipped by a $50,000 breach of promise suit won by pretty Dorothy Newburg of Lynn, Mass., has been convicted of murder, principally through the testimony of Helen Buller, his latest sweetheart. The State demands the extreme penalty.

Scott, who fled Canada when Miss Newburg filed her balm suit, lost his rapidly growing business as a result of his disappearance. The firm went to the wall. Scott went to Chicago with his brother Robert.

Miss Newburg's efforts to collect the judgment awarded her were fruitless, and Toronto had forgotten the debonnair young man whose financial operations had won him fame and fortune there.

Then came the word that Scott had been arrested for the murder of Joseph Maurer, a drug store clerk, in the course of an attempted holdup.

Scott, an anaemic, quavering youth, in sharp contest to the prosperous young broker of other days, sat in court and listened while Miss Buller positively identified, as his, the revolver with which the clerk had been slain. Then Scott pleaded guilty and threw himself on the mercy of the court.

GIRL IS GIVEN RIGHT TO NAME

Montreal, June 21.—The final act in the legitimacy suit in which an Aberdeen shopgirl, Constance Mary Lyon, sought to establish her claim as the eldest lawful child of Herbert Bowes-Lyon, nephew of the Earl of Strathmore, occurred in an Edinburgh Court, when Lord Morison delivered a considered judgment in favor of the girl's petition.

He said the marriage of the plaintiff's parents was clearly proved and the only question remaining was whether the plaintiff was their daughter. In his lordship's opinion the answer was in the affirmative.

It was not unnatural, said the judgment, that the defendant and his wife were anxious to conceal the birth of their daughter from their parents.

The evidence indicated that the marriage took place subsequent to the birth of the child. Mrs. Lyon appeared to have registered her daughter's birth as legitimate, as she was entitled to do, the parents' domicile being Scottish.

AUTO TOUR FOR HONEYMOON

The wedding of Miss Madeline T. Russell, daughter of Mrs. George E. P. Russell and Edward Allan Mead of the Hotel Princeton, took place last night at No. 321 Auburndale avenue, Auburndale. Rev. Harold P. Stratton of Arlington was the officiating clergyman. The bride was given in marriage by her cousin, William Carroll Hill, at whose home the wedding took place.

The bride wore white satin. Attending her were Miss Mildred Milner of Dorchester as maid-of-honor; Miss Grace Elizabeth Brackett of Marblehead as flower girl and Master Robert Braintley Hill, 2d., as train bearer. Russell V. Mead, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were Raymond O. Brackett of Marblehead, Wallace M. McNaught of Dorchester, Allan F. Jordan of Waban and Paul Chapman of Wellesley.

A reception followed the ceremony after which the couple left for an extended automobile tour.
